THREE BROTHERS LOST

Serving Aboard Fated Destroyer

. . . SAILORS FROM NIOBRARA

Niobrara (AP) — Three brothers off a northeast Nebraska farm went down together when the USS Evans collided with the Australian aircraft carrier Melbourne in the South China Sea.

The Navy notified Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sage of rural Niobrara Tuesday that their sons Gary, 21; Gregory, 19, and Kelly Jo, 18, were among the 73 crewmen from the destroyer who were given up for dead.

The brothers asked that the Navy assign them to the same ship, said Capt. Ivan C. Griswold of the Naval personnel and training center at Omaha.

The Defense Department said Gregory, who had a wife and 13-month-old boy, was a radarman third class, and Kelly and Gary were seaman recruits.

One At Home

A fourth brother, Douglas, a first-grader, remains at home. There are no sisters.

"Maybe I had something to do with their joining the Navy," said Ernest Sage. "I was an Army man during World War II, and I told them I thought maybe they'd have life a little better in the Navy. It seemed like good advice then . . ."

He said Gary had been aboard the cargo ship USS Merrick but applied for a transfer to the Evans where Greg was stationed. The transfer came through last September, and when Kelly completed boot camp, he also was assigned, at his request, to the Evans, the father said.

'Bad Mistake'

An uncle, Lawrence Sage of Niobrara, said it was "a bad mistake on the part of the Navy to let them all serve together."

"It's bad enough to lose one boy," he said, "but no one should have to lose three."

Mrs. Harold Moler, an aunt who lives in Omaha, said the Sage brothers got along well together.

Always Together

"They were common, ordinary farm boys who graduated from high school and knew they had to go into the service so they enlisted in the Navy," she said. "They always did things together. They loved to hunt and fish."

Commented Mrs. Cheryl Hargens, who went to school with Greg and Kelly:

"They were full of fun, but I never knew them to get into any trouble. What can you say? Everyone feels awful about it. All you can do is keep hoping."

Mrs. Hargens said she talked with Gary when the three boys came home on leave last March.

Didn't Like Idea

"He told me then that he didn't like the idea of all three brothers being on the same ship," she recalled. "He said that if anything happened, that the family could lose all three."

The boys' father said Gary had nine months left of a four-year hitch; Greg expected to be released a year from October, and Kelly enlisted Dec. 30, 1968.

In Verdel, Leroy Angel, Greg's father-in-law, said that Greg had never planned to make a career of the Navy.

Talked Of Future

"He and I talked about his plans for the future and he was talking about going to school when he got out. He was with radar on the ship and he was thinking about going into engineering," Angel said.

He said his daughter, Linda, and Greg were married just two years ago this month.

"They went together in high school and then Greg went to Omaha to work," said Angel. "Linda got a job with the telephone company. They got married when he was home on leave and Linda transferred out to California until he went overseas and then she transferred back to Omaha."

Angel said Linda and Greg had often talked of wanting to get back on the farm.

Jim Waldman, who runs a service station, remembers the boys well.

"They were normal healthy kids. They were good kids when going to high school here. The whole community is shook up," he said.

Calvin Baker, who went to school with the brothers before graduation in 1965 from Niobrara High School, recalled he didn't know the boys very well, having just moved to town that year. "But they seemed like regular guys and pretty fair students."

If Requested

In Washington, Navy spokesmen said regulations permit members of the same family to serve aboard the same ship if they request it and if it is feasible.

Navy officials were unable to say immediately if this was the largest number of members of a single family killed in the sinking of a U.S. warship since the five Sullivan brothers of Waterloo, Iowa, went down with the cruiser Juneau in the battle of Guadalcanal on Nov. 13, 1942.

'69 Cody Award Goes To Devine

Gravel-voiced Andy Devine, veteran movie and television star, was announced Tuesday as the 1969 winner of the Buffalo Bill Cody Award for "outstanding contributions to quality family entertainment in the Cody tradition."

Identity of the fifth annual honoree was announced jointly by Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann, the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, and Nebraskaland Days, Inc., of North Platte.

Devine will be in North Platte during Nebraskaland Days, June 16 through 22, to accept the award from Gov. Tiemann and to act as grand marshal for the Nebraskaland parade on Thursday, June 19.

He will also be guest of honor at the annual Buffalo Bill luncheon on Thursday, sponsored by the North Platte Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors.

Devine will be accompanied by his wife, Dorothy.

Previous winners of the Buffalo Bill award have been Dale Robertson in 1965, Charlton Heston in 1966, Chuck Connors in 1967, and Leif Erickson in 1968.

A resident of Newport Beach, Calif., Devine counts more than 43 years of show business experience. His most recent role was in "The Over-The-Hill Gang," a western made for television and co-starring Chill Wills, Walter Brennan, Pat O'Brien and Edgar Buchanan.

Long the sidekick of numerous western heroes, Devine enjoyed a long run on television in a series in which he played Jingles P. Jones, partner to Wild Bill Hickok.

Devine was a college student when offered a bit part by Universal Studios in 1925. He stayed at Universal for 21 years and made almost 400 films.

A fishing and hunting enthusiast, Devine is a collector of first editions of books on the outdoors. He also enjoys golf, is a ham radio operator and on the board of directors for Boys Scouts of Orange County, California.

For 21 years he and his family lived at Van Nuys, Calif., and for 19 years he was honorary mayor of that city.

Old Air Park Pool To Open

James Ager, city park and recreation director, said Thursday that the olympic-size swimming pool at the Lincoln Air Park will likely be opened to area residents sometime next week.

Ager said a lease between the city and the Airport Authority was agreed on during a meeting of representatives of the City Council, Park and Recreation Advisory Board and the Airport Authority.

A group of residents living at the old Lincoln Air Force Base housing area had unrged the city to secure the pool, saying area residents would underwrite the cost of pool operations.

A nonprofit corporation was formed to sell memberships entitling families to use the pool facilities.

Ager pointed out that because the people who would be using the pool are not city residents, tax funds could not be used for operation of the pool.

Terms of the lease call for the city to pay the Airport Authority $500 for the three months that the pool would be open, plus 10% of receipts from ticket sales.

The action by the city to provide the pool to the area residents still requires approval of the mayor.

Cost Estimates

Ager has estimated that to put the pool in operation would require $3,320 for repairs, $7,444 for employe salaries and $838 for equipment.

The pool, owned by the Airport Authority, has not been in use since the Lincoln Job Corps Center closed.

The lease also provides for use of the tennis courts in the Lincoln Air Park.

Cleaning To Begin

Mrs. Maureen Shawver, president of the nonprofit corporation, said crews consisting of people living in the housing area would begin working Wednesday to clean the pool and get it ready for use next week.

"It gratifies me to see that the city has a heart and that people in government are willing to help those who help out themselves," Mrs. Shawver said.

She said that her group has received sufficient pledges in memberships and contributions to underwrite all costs of the city's operating the pool this summer.

Hested's Store Plans To Close

Hested's Department Store will close its doors between now and August, according to H. D. Dodson, manager of Lincoln Hested Stores.

Hested's, which has operated at 14th and O for 15 years, was Lincoln's first self-service department store. It was originally a part of the Hested-Lee chain, originated in 1909 when E. J. Hested opened a variety store in Fairbury. The Hested-Lee firm practiced a tithing system for many years whereby it set aside 10% of its profits for religious donations and educational scholarships.

The Hested-Lee chain included 96 stores throughout the midwest when it merged with the J. J. Newberry Co. of New York City eight years ago. The Lincoln store underwent a $100,000 expansion and remodeling following the merger.

The Newberry chain presently numbers 664 stores operating throughout the United States and Canada under seven different names.

The department store's lease expires October 31, according to Dodson, and will not be renewed. Hested's fifteen employees have been notified of the termination of their employment, Dodson said.

The building currently occupied by Hested's is owned by the Midwest Life Insurance Co. of 500 So. 16th. Future plans for the building have not been disclosed.

The Hested departure follows the closing the S. S. Kresge Store at 12th & O last December.

Soaring Arms Spending Is Blamed On Congress

Washington (AP) — Two former high-ranking government officials said Tuesday the Pentagon overestimates potential threats to U.S. security and easy acceptance of this by Congress is largely to blame for ballooning defense spending.

John Kenneth Galbraith, Harvard economics professor and former ambassador to India under President John F. Kennedy, and Charles L. Schultze, President Lyndon B. Johnson's budget director, said Congress must reassert its power and lead the battle against unnecessary military expenditures.

The two economists were leadoff witnesses at the opening of two weeks of hearings by a Senate-House economic subcommittee into the military budget and national economic priorities.

"Primarily we have large military budgets because the American people, in the cold war environment of the 1950s and 1960s, have pretty much been willing to buy anything carrying the label 'Needed for National Security,'" Schultze said.

"The political climate has, until recently, been such that on fundamental matters it was exceedingly difficult to challenge military judgments, and still avoid the stigma of playing fast and loose with the national security," he said.

Galbraith said Congress should empanel a group of scientists known as the Military Audit Commission to advise legislators on military needs.

Congress should also consider, he said, nationalizing all large defense contractors.

"Perhaps any firm which, over a five-year period, has done more than 75% of its business with the Defense Department, should be made a full public corporation with all stock in public hands," Galbraith said.

He maintained that the armed services, along with weapons manufacturers, make the real decisions now on military needs.

"The Congress, led by the military houecarls and sycophants among its members, hastens to comply," Galbraith said. "The citizen plays no role except to pay the bill."

Schultze said the government has erred in spending too much "to cover a wide range of remote contingencies."

"This tendency — combined with the relentless ability of modern technology to create new contingencies and new systems to combat them — threatens to produce sizable increases in the defense budget," he said.

Schultze recommended that Congress "responsibly examine and debate all of the basic assumptions and concepts which underline the military budget."

Pickpockets' Activity Puts Police Afoot

Cairo (UPI)—Police officers in Cairo have been told they will remain in their offices only for certain emergencies. Otherwise, they are to patrol the streets on foot searching for pickpockets.

Hundreds of cases of pocketpicking have been reported in recent weeks, leading to a government crackdown, on the lawbreakers.

Legislature Rejects Efforts To Alter Open Housing Bill

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

By the narrowest of margins, a divided Legislature Tuesday rejected efforts to remove proposed exemptions from the open housing bill and eliminate current exemptions in the equal employment opportunity act.

The open housing proposal, largely intact after more than two hours of discussion and debate, will be subjected to further amendatory efforts when lawmakers convene Wednesday.

Pending at adjournment was a motion from Sen. Clifton Batchelder of Omaha which, in effect, would wipe out the proposed administration and enforcement procedures in the bill.

Assaults Turned Back

Three major assaults on the exemption provisions contained in LB718 were turned back during the afternoon-long discussion.

Sen. Terry Carpenter's bid to eliminate all proposed exemptions relating to the sale and rental of housing was rejected on a 19-20 vote.

Carpenter's effort to remove most exemptions in the equal employment opportunity act, including the proviso which now excepts all employers with fewer than 25 employes, was defeated on a 17-18 count.

Effort Failed

Sen. Henry Pedersen Jr. of Omaha failed, on a 15-23 vote, to gain exemption in housing for owners of single-family homes who do not utilize the services of a realtor in marketing their structure.

That exemption, Pedersen said, would amend LB718 to match the provisions in the federal open housing law.

In its present form, the proposed state law would provide exemptions only for persons who offer for rent less than five sleeping rooms in their own homes, and for housing provided by religious organizations and private clubs.

Otherwise, racial discrimination in the sale or rental of housing would be strictly prohibited. The act would be administered by an enlarged and reconstituted Equal Opportunity Comission.

LB718 would be a broader enactment than the federal law, and give the state jurisdicton over proposed complaints.

Carpenter, referring to an attorney general's opinion dated May 9, told his colleagues that there is a serious constitutional question as to whether Nebraska in particular can provide any exemptions.

The enabling act of Congress which permitted Nebraska to become a state in 1867 provided that the new state could not deny any human rights "by reason of race or color," Carpenter noted.

The exemption permitted to homeowners who rent fewer than five sleeping rooms "may very possibly constitute a denial of a right of the nature which was intended to be guaranteed by the conditions of admission of the state to the union," the attorney general's opinion stated.

Thus, Carpenter argued, a bill with exemptions may be unconstitutional.

Would Kill Bill

But Sen. Donald Elrod of Grand Island, chief sponsor of the bill, said removal of the exemptions would, in effect, kill the measure. Support for LB718 would soon evaporate, he warned.

The only substantial change made in the bill was removal of the feature which would have permitted aggrieved citizens to collect damages from defendants. Elrod accepted that amendment without argument.

Carpenter also won approval for an amendment which would arm the commission with authority to enforce current public accommodations laws already on the books.

Vigorously Opposed

Sen. Edward Danner of Omaha vigorously opposed the Pedersen proposal to exempt single-family homes sold by the owner, arguing that such a provision amounted to "subterfuge and scheming to evade the law."

Exemptions for a person who rents rooms in his own home are justified, Danner said.

"Every man should have the right to decide to whom he will rent a room in his own home," the Omaha senator insisted. "I want to preserve that right."

Carpenter said he is concerned that, based on the projected budgetary request of $74,000, the open housing act may be little more than "a sham."

LB718 provides that cities and counties which enact equivalent ordinances or laws would have initial jurisdiction over enforcement of the act.

The vote on Carpenter's amendment to remove all exemptions for housing produced an odd mixture of senators, some apparently voting to weaken the bill, others supporting the principle of no exceptions.

The vote:

For: Batchelder, Bloom, Burbach, Carpenter, Clark, Duis, Klaver, Mahoney, Marvel, Orme, Reynolds, Robinson, Stull, Swanson, Syas, Whitney, Wiltse, Wylie.

Against: Adamson, Craft, Danner, Elrod, Harsh, Hasebroock, Holmquist, Johnson, Keyes, Knight, Kokes, Luedtke, Moulton, Moylan, Pedersen, Proud, Schmit, Schreurs, Simpson, Wallwey.

Not Voting: Budd, Carstens, Kennedy, Nore, Skarda, Waldo, Waldron, Warner, Wenzlaff, Ziebarth.

Auburn Man, 41, Held For Sending Threat To Nixon

Omaha (AP) — Richard Leroy Jeanneret, 41, of Auburn was taken into custody by Secret Service agents in Omaha Monday night on a warrant charging him with writing a threatening letter to President Richard Nixon. The warrant was sent from Washington.

Richard A. Roth, agent in charge, said Jeanneret allegedly sent the letter from Mexico. He said a hearing will be held in an attempt to send Jeanneret to Washington to answer the charges.

Burger Says No Court Has Legislative Power

World News

Washington (AP) — Warren E. Burger won swift Senate Judiciary Committee approval Tuesday to be chief justice of the United States.

Thirteen senators agreed unanimously after the white-haired judge assured them he does not think the Supreme Court has the power to legislate or to amend the Constitution.

The Senate, now in recess, can complete the confirmation process Thursday, although Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said action next week is more likely.

Public Left Outside

The committee dealt gently with Burger over one hour and 45 minutes. The 80 or so spectator seats were given to lawyers and friends. Members of the general public stood outside, unable to get in.

Burger obviously pleased the conservative-dominated committee with what he said.

The chairman, Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., asked him at the opening:

"Do you think the Supreme Court has power to amend the Constitution of the United States by judicial interpretation?"

"No, clearly no," Burger replied.

"Does the Supreme Court have power to legislate?" Eastland continued.

"No court has that power," Burger said firmly.

And, he told one of the committee's liberals, Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., that it would be a good idea to have federal judges file with the U.S. Judicial Conference full financial balance sheets.

He also said he would sever his connections with non-judicial organizations if he is confirmed.

Fire Kills 12 On Top Floor Of Kansas City Apartment

Kansas City (AP) — Fire roared through the top floor of a three-story apartment business district Tuesday, killing 12 persons including six in one family.

Eight children died in the blaze.

Neighbors, passersby and firemen helped some of the approximately 100 residents down stairways, fire escapes and ladders while flames shot more than 50 feet above the roof.

One resident, Lawrence M. Smith, stood at a third-floor window with his 5-month-old son, Harry, in his arms.

"Oh, my God there's a fire, oh my God," the father screamed before he leaped.

Smith was injured seriously when he landed on a paved area, and his son died an hour later in a hospital. Smith's wife, Barbara, 19, and their 2-year-old daughter perished in the flames.

The fire occurred in a middle-income neighborhood of neat private homes mingled with apartments and duplexes.

Eleven of the bodies were found in charred rubble of the building's third floor. Damage to the lower two floors was caused mostly by smoke and water.

Firemen found six bodies in one third-floor apartment and believed them to be Rex Johnson, 40; his wife, Tina, 40; their son Rex Jr., 7; a 5-year-old son and two daughters aged 3 and 2.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund L. Goddens lost their son, Edmund Jr., 5, and a daughter, Scarlett, 3. The parents and their two younger children escaped.

"Someone started screaming 'fire' downstairs, and we woke up," said Goddens, a taxicab driver.

"I started toward the kitchen to get the two older kids, but the smoke was too thick. I couldn't breathe or even make it through the living room."

The 12th victim was Miss Joyce Franks, 21.

Two brothers, Cornelius and Charles Twenter, spotted the fire as they drove past the building.

"We ran up the stairway of the building knocking on doors and telling everyone to close their windows and shut the doors. But when the people opened the doors to escape, the draft swept up," said Cornelius.

Flames had broken through the roof of the gray, L-shaped building when firemen arrived after they received the first call at 2:16 a.m.

"It seems like the fire got an awfully large start before anybody noticed it," said Fire Director James Halloran. "It appears it started in the basement near the stairwell and the flames shot up this unused shaft that goes clear to the third floor."

Maj. Sterling Ford of the Police Department said it had found no evidence that the fire had been set.

Paratroops Turn Up Rockets

Saigon (AP) — U.S. 82nd Airborne Division troops completed a two-day sweep near Saigon Tuesday and turned up an enemy cache of 100-pound rockets apparently intended for use against the capital.

The division reported killing 31 enemy soldiers and capturing four others in scattered fire fights during the sweep. Most of the action was about 11 miles northwest of the capital.

However, U.S. paratroopers found the rockets just 5½ miles west of Saigon Monday. Earlier that day, two rockets slammed into Saigon for the first time since May 17, killing three South Vietnamese civilians and wounding 17. However, military sources say these rockets were fired from areas east of Saigon.

The cache of 122mm rockets, which have a maximum range of seven miles, was found in a bunker.

The exact number of rockets was not known. The paratroopers saw the bunker contained a rocket and, fearing booby traps, blew it up.

"There must have been a lot more rockets down there," a military spokesman said. "The whole area just seemed to erupt. It left about a 20-foot crater."

Military sources said U.S. losses were one killed and 15 wounded during the sweep in fights with what was estimated as a reinforced Viet Cong rifle company. Six enemy bunkers also were destroyed.

Elsewhere Tuesday, elements of the U.S. 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment killed 12 enemy soldiers and captured four more in a brief fight 55 miles northwest of Saigon near An Loc. Three Americans were wounded in the 40-minute exchange.

This general area near the Cambodian border and the central highlands were struck Monday and Tuesday by U.S. B52 Stratofortresses.

He was 21 when he was cast as a New York slum youngster in the movie version of "Dead End," a hit play about Manhattan slum people.

Clay Center Research Center Dedicated

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

Clay Center — One of Nebraska's most beautiful days was experienced here Tuesday for the out-of-door dedication ceremonies of the 35,000 acre U.S. Meat Animal Research Center.

As Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin took the stage to address an audience that included representatives from practically every livestock organization in the nation and foreign visitors, the sound of construction at the center's headquarters offered a backdrop to the dedication ceremonies.

The purpose of the center, the world's largest of its kind, is to develop, through research, new technology for meat animal production. The goals are to improve carcass merit and reduce production costs of cattle, sheep, and hogs.

As Secretary Hardin reminded the audience of the importance of research he said, "The key to the phenomenal success of our agriculture has been the continuing replacement of less productive methods of farming by more productive methods."

As he reminded the audience that for each dollar spent on agricultural research the returns are at least 35% per year, he said there are those who still question the value of agricultural research.

Co-Operation Stressed

The center is being developed by the federal government and is administered by the Animal Husbandry Research Division of the Agricultural Research Service. The research programs are carried on in cooperation with the Nebraska Agricultural Experiment Station and with other experiment stations of land-grant universities.

Dr. E. F. Frolik, dean of the NU College of Agriculture and Home Economics, said the location of the center offered an opportunity for a strengthening of extension programs in south central Nebraska.

"We are asking the USDA to make land available at the center for NU research in crop production, soils, irrigation and pest control. This program will be aimed at solving problems typical to south central Nebraska," said Frolik.

He said the NU Board of Regents is asking the legislature for three additional staff positions for both extension and research to be headquartered at Clay Center.

Comments from others on the program included:

Dr. Ralph Hodgson, director of Animal Husbandry Research Division, USDA, Beltsville, Md., said, "I have been concerned with this project for a number of years. It has appeal because it is in the center of the U.S. and in the center of our great livestock population. It is located where the great feedland belt and grassland meet."

T. W. Edminister, deputy administrator farm research, Agricultural Research Service, Washington, D.C., said, "The concept for the center evolved from the urgent need for an integrated approach to research objectives. It will be the finest laboratory of its kind in the world."

Gov. Norbert Tiemann said, "The keyword is education and education is research. We are doomed to failure unless we constantly move with more research where Nebraska has more than a passing stake in a livestock industry worth $9.5 billion."

C. W. McMillan, executive vice president of the American National Cattlemen's Association, Denver, Colo., said, "We must keep adequate funds moving for the development of MARC as the cattle industry needs it and the nation needs it."

Arden Johnson, Exeter, vice president National Livestock Feeders Association, said, "We are still using too many pounds of feed to produce a pound of meat and even though red meat is the king of food products we must visualize further progress of animals with more edible meat."

James Volk of Battle Creek, director National Pork Producers Council, said, "This is a day we have long looked forward to for research that we might produce more efficiently."

Dr. A. G. Hazen, chairman North Central Region Agricultural Experiment Station Directors, said, "This day cultimates a tremendous amount of legislation, planning, discussion and efforts of many to formally initiate a form of research that can be valuable to the 37 agricultural experiment stations and land-grant colleges."

A brief outline of research programs at the center was presented by Dr. Keith E. Gregory, director, prior to Rep. David Martin, R-Neb., unveiling the dedication marker that will occupy a permanent spot at the center headquarters.

Hardin Predicts Hunger Elimination Soon

Clay Center — Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin told a press conference at the U.S. Meat Animal Research Center here Tuesday that within the next month food distribution problems should be worked out where "for the first time we will eliminate hunger in the U.S."

He said the problems of his office continue to be headed by a farm problem that is not much different than what has been experienced for the past 35 years with the major responsibility of distribution of food to the poor.

Secretary Hardin said the U.S. should be a wealthy enough nation to eliminate surplus farm production on one hand and hunger on the other.

He predicted that within the next few years there will be real opportunities for those who have plans to develop new growth centers where people from areas around large cities can be dispersed to rural areas of America.

Limitation of Payments

Secretary Hardin said, "We have opposed limitation of farm program payments at this time because it automatically triggers other legislation that comes into place for cotton that would cost $160 million more than if we do not apply a limitation on farm payments."

He said the time to discuss limitation of payments would be more likely at the time of writing new farm legislation.

"Troublesome isn't it," said Secretary Hardin as he discussed with the news media the problems of having cotton farmers of the south turning to corn, soybeans and cattle production on an expanded scale if they as chief beneficiaries of large farm payments would be limited on cotton payments and thus seek other avenues of farm production.

Secretary Hardin attributed current strong livestock prices to an increased consumer demand for red meats and he said importing nations have been "very cooperative" in holding down imports.

He acknowledged that if imported meats reached the limits set by legislation "we have no choice other than to take action on halting imports."

Secretary Hardin said he expected fairly good feed grain prices during the next few months and that it is possible new farm legislation would be ready for discussion this fall.

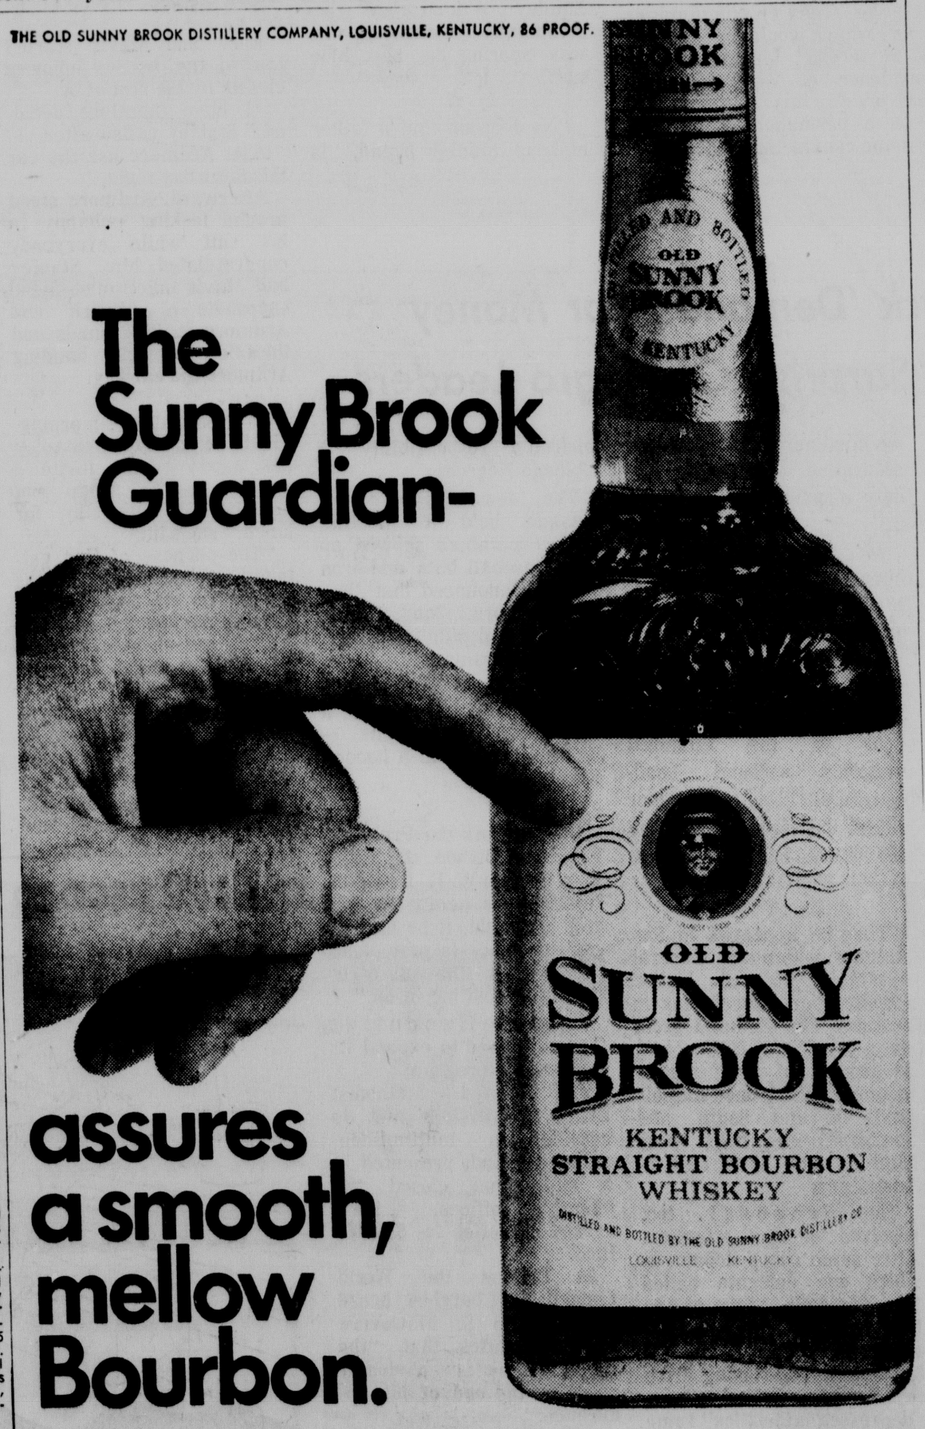
THE OLD SUNNY BROOK DISTILLERY COMPANY, LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY, 86 PROOF.

The Sunny Brook Guardian-



assures a smooth, mellow Bourbon.

One of Kentucky's most famous characters is the Sunny Brook Guardian. Way back in 1891, he introduced new high standards for making Bourbon. Insisted on using costlier small grains. A very special yeast strain. And then aging in hand-made barrels. He's never changed. And neither has our quality.

It's the most carefully guarded taste in Bourbon.

3 Omahans Die In Separate Auto Accidents

Omaha (AP) — Robert J. Schiller, 21, of Omaha, died in a hospital Tuesday, about three hours after a one-car accident, police reported. Two other persons were injured.

Police said a car driven by Russell Rubek, 18, of the Omaha area apparently went out of control and struck a tree. Rubek was reported in fair condition at a hospital Tuesday. Another passenger, Thomas Jensen, 20, also of Omaha, was in "serious condition.

Two other persons also have died in traffic mishaps, Omaha police said.

Youngster Killed

Ernie J. Whitman, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Whitman, died late Monday, six days after he was struck by a car, acting coroner George Sullivan said. The boy suffered head injuries.

Police said the driver of the car, James E. Dorman, 28, had reported the boy ran into the street from between two parked cars. Dorman was not ticketed.

Sullivan also said the death Monday of Mrs. Marion D. Goodland, 63, Omaha, would be counted as a traffic fatality. An autopsy indicated she died of accident injuries.

Mrs. Goodland was a passenger in a car driven by her son when it was involved in a crash Monday.

Emerson Mishap Kills Father, Son

By The Associated Press

An Emerson-Hubbard High School vocational agriculture teacher and his son are the latest victims of Nebraska traffic.

Lawrence Umland, 27, of rural Emerson, was killed Tuesday in the collision of his auto and a semi-trailer truck at the intersection of Highways 9 and 35 about one mile north of Emerson.

His son, Douglas, 3, died a short time later at a Sioux City hospital.

The driver of the truck, Jerry Christensen, 35, Sioux Falls, S.D., apparently was not hurt.

The deaths bring the total for the year to 140 in Nebraska traffic this year. This compares with 172 on June 4, 1968.

Lions To Hear Walter Campbell

Chadron (AP) — Dr. Walter Campbell of Miami, Fla., past president of Lions International, will be the principal speaker at the state Lions convention in Chadron this weekend. More than 500 members are expected for the two-day convention.

Dr. Campbell will speak at a Saturday night banquet.

Kastrau Is Added To Traffic Deaths

The death of the editor-publisher of The Milford Times was added Tuesday to the list of traffic deaths in Nebraska this year.

State Accident Records Chief Tom Ryan said that while James Albert Kastrau, 44, Milford, died May 2, his death was not reported to the bureau until Tuesday.

At the same time, the death of Lawrence Howchin, 59, of St. Paul on May 3 was deleted from the grim tally because it was determined Howchin died of a heart attack. He had been involved in an accident on Nebraska 91 five miles west of Spalding.

Kastrau was involved in a pickup truck accident on a gravel road near his home on April 28, Ryan explained. He said Kastrau did not feel hurt badly enough to see a doctor after the accident but that he began to feel worse the next day.

On April 30 he went to see a doctor and was hospitalized in Seward. He died on May 2 of internal injuries, Ryan said.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

People are curious creatures. People from foreign lands come to the United States and find many fascinating things. The people of the United States find the visitors fascinating.

That must be a part of what they call human nature — the desire to know and understand that which is foreign to one in some way or the other. When a group of journalists from a dozen foreign lands visited Lincoln, it was only natural that something be reported about the visit.

Lincoln people would be interested in knowing, for instance, what the visitors thought of the city. This is a point of pride but the kind of pride people ought to have.

Lincolnites like their city and hope that it is the kind of place that other people would like. They are proud of the physical makeup and the character of the city — the latter a combination of many things, both human and otherwise.

The travelling group was favorably impressed, especially with the friendly atmosphere of the Midwest. We have always hoped that such an atmosphere existed but it is an intangible thing that is hard to measure.

What is it that makes a place friendly or unfriendly? It all boils down to the people themselves. It gets down to the people you meet and whether they indicate a sincere interest in you. And this means the people you meet under all kinds of circumstances, both in business and socially.

One of the visiting journalists remarked that she was surprised at the quickness with which a first name relationship was established here. It is true that it doesn't take long. The minute you meet someone, you speak to them on a first name basis.

Then, you are likely to make a few personal inquiries of them, such as what kind of work they do, whether they have a family, what part of the country they come from, etc. In the case of a foreign visitor, you would inquire about their native land, its climate, its politics, its difficulties, its opportunities, etc.

If you are interested in people, such inquiries are only routine. In the process of asking such questions and getting the answers, you will probably find something on which to base a continuing discussion.

Somewhere along the line, you will find something the two of you have in common or something unique in which one or the other of you have a real interest. In the case of a foreign visitor, you might find a common bond in a land of common ancestry.

As one of the visiting journalists noted, this is still a very young country. The cities of Omaha and Lincoln are but 100 years old, compared to the centuries old towns that are a part of the European and many other continents of the world. The rest of the world is really antique in comparison to our own United States and especially the West.

We are young, too, in a lot of other things. By virtue of the relative shortness of our years, we lack the long heritage that shapes a society such as can be found in the older parts of the world.

Thus, we are not held back by inhibitions based on past experience and are encouraged to action by the promise of the future. This is a hard thing to totally define in terms of the individual but it is of major impact on the population as a whole.

Therefore, we have two thoughts of value as a product of our look inside the thoughts and reactions of our foreign visitors. For one, a friendly atmosphere is something real and something that only the people of an area can create.

Secondly, in the rapid pace of the nation we should recognize a national youthfulness which will naturally lead to some impatience and conflict but which does produce results.

'. . . Let Us Prey . . .'

The End At Berkeley

The occupation of the University of California at Berkeley has ended. At the request of university and local city officials, Gov. Ronald Reagan has pulled out the National Guard troops that have occupied the campus for nearly three weeks now.

As this episode in the stormy history of this great center of learning comes to end, we hope that we have arrived at a new beginning. The Berkeley affair of the past two weeks demonstrates the extreme lengths to which we have gone in our society — extremes that, unless reversed, will ultimately destroy us.

The fight in Berkeley, and that is what it has been, was sparked by student occupation of an empty city block and its conversion to a hippie-type park. Just stop and think of that! Would you agree that such should be the cause for National Guard occupation of the campus — a military unit fully equipped with gas masks and fixed bayonets?

This was an adult reaction. If youngsters had reacted with such extremism, they would have been loudly condemned for their immaturity. It was not a reaction, of course, but an overreaction.

Our society cannot continue to victimize itself with such emotionalism if it intends to meet the human and sociological needs that are so pressing upon us. We need a period of enlightened understanding if we are not to allow ourselves to fall into a series of overreactions that would do us, perhaps, irreparable harm.

Bus And Rail Hopes Up

Efforts to improve public transportation within the city and to hang on to one of Lincoln's last links with streamliner rail service again are in the news.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf this week picked the Philadelphia traffic engineering firm of Simpson and Curtin — one of five firms under consideration — to undertake a technical study of bus system operations in Lincoln. The Department of Transportation has set aside $40,000 in federal funds for the Lincoln study, awaiting only the selection by Lincoln of a consultant that meets federal approval. Apparently there should be no trouble in getting the mayor's choice approved.

The technical study is a very important step in opening the door for future federal transportation funds for Lincoln. At the end of eight months the city should have a fair appraisal of the adequacy of the present bus system and where we should go from here to make the service more attractive to the public.

This will include the question of public ownership as opposed to the present private ownership of Lincoln City Lines; problems of serving the disadvantaged; routing and in general what role buses will play in the future of Lincoln.

In line with a step forward in the bus situation, the Interstate Commerce Commission has ruled that the Denver-Rio Grande Western Railroad cannot discontinue operation of its Denver-Salt Lake City segment of the famed California Zephyr passenger train effective June 16. Although it was expected because of other ICC decisions in cases such as this, the suspension of the discontinuance is still good news. It gives areas or communities such as Lincoln, which would be affected by the break in service, four months to come with evidence of why California Zephyr service over this segment can be continued on a permanent basis. We are hoping for some convincing evidence.

BOB CONSIDINE

Two Breakthroughs In Sight

NEW YORK — Hold everything. We may be on the brink of two important breakthroughs affecting the war in Vietnam and the rebellion on the campuses.

Ho Chi Minh, who can turn the Vietnamese war on or off, like a spigot, sent a little memo to his field commanders last week suggesting that they knock off their heavy expenditures of supplies and men. It was the first time on record that the dictator, a former waiter in a Chinese restaurant here in New York, indicated that he gave a hoot about the human life at his disposal.

At Northeastern University, Boston, a handful of far out Students for a Democratic Society, after seizing space in one of the university buildings to protest the continuation of ROTC on the campus, met with a most astonishing reaction. The regular students of the university, largest private institution of learning in the U.S. emerged from their shell of indifference and ran them out.

That's news that's fit to print.

For Ho Chi Minh even to hint that he's hurting is one of the most significant turns in the longest war in which U.S. forces have ever been invested. His losses at one period last week were 40 times those of the Allies. Since the beginning of the war, his own troops or those under his domination have suffered more than 500,000 dead. Considering the modest population of North Vietnam, and reduced to per capita terms, that would mean — if the tables were reversed — about 7,000,000 American dead.

What kind of furore, how many riots and impeachments, would obtain here in the U.S. if this were the case?

I recall a day in Gen. Westmoreland's headquarters in Vietam when he said, with utter awe in his voice, that his forces were killing the enemy at the rate of 17 to one. He was flabbergasted that the enemy was still fighting, bravely and resourcefully. Everything the general had ever studied at West Point had assured him — and all other American commanders — that no enemy in his right senses can tolerate odds of that type. An American or European foe, or a Russian or a Latin-American would long since have waved the white flag of unconditional surrender and come limping to the peace table — to whimper and sign on the dotted line.

Different worlds, different brains, different compassions.

But lo and behold Ho Chi Minh now talks as if he's becoming interested in human life. Could that drop of the milk of human kindness become a flood that sweeps the round green table at Paris?

☆ ☆ ☆

As for Northeastern University, the action was predictable, up to a certain point. The militant handful of SDS students and a few of their callow camp followers issued the familiar ultimatum to President Asa Knowles to cancel the school's ROTC program because it was an arm of American "imperialism." Knowles said, in effect, "Not this minute. We'll take it up with the board." Whereupon, the SDS seized a portion of a school building and showed the red flags from the windows.

All of a sudden the uncommitted, non-partisan Northeastern students — who work harder for an education than almost any student body one can name — showed up in strength, assaulted the flag-waving windows with eggs, threatened to go in and clean out the rebels. The dissidents chickened out immediately.

Dr. Knowles, on his bullhorn, saved the protesters from bodily harm by an eloquent plea for justice as they marched out through the regular student body. The real students returned to their classes with a fresh and all but unprecedented knowledge that THEY, not the weirdie beardies, are the true power and the glory and the last real hope of the educational process.

Nixon's Style Infects Stanley

President Nixon's way of handling a tough decision has infected Stanley, who lives down the block. Last Sunday a group of us were sitting around his patio, as happy as a band of imbeciles in a TV commercial, when Stanley's 17-year-old son, Ardmore, joined the circle.

"Dad," said Ardmore, "can I use the car Saturday night?"

"I shall have a decision on that to announce Thursday," Stanley replied.

On Thursday morning, Stanley's wife telephoned all the neighbors and invited them to be on the patio at 6 p.m. for an important announcement.

When we arrived the chairs were set out in rows and there was no beer. After a few minutes, the back door to the house opened and Stanley emerged accompanied by Ardmore, who was wearing his best blue suit.

☆ ☆ ☆

"No decision that a father makes," Stanley began, "is more important than his handling of a son's request to use the car on Saturday night. It involves not just a piece of property of great value to the entire family, but more importantly, it may affect the lives of everyone in our community, as well as the life of one whom we hold most dear to our heart. In making this decision—."

"Let the kid have the car and break out the beer!" called Buck Stimmus, the neighborhood Democrat.

Undeterred, Stanley pressed on. "In making this difficult decision, I have not acted on impulse. There were important factors that had to be weighed, such as Ardmore's sobriety, accident-insurance coverage—."

"For heaven's sake, Mavis," Buck Stimmus said to Stanley's wife, "tell me where the beer is and I'll go get it."

Buck and Mavis started toward the house, followed closely by the rest of us.

"I have therefore decided," Stanley called after us, "to let Ardmore use the car this Saturday night."

Afterward, Ardmore stood around looking unhappy in his suit while everybody congratulated him. Stanley had Mavis take some home snapshots of himself and Ardmore shaking hands and then of himself handing Ardmore the car key.

☆ ☆ ☆

On Saturday morning, Mavis telephoned. "Stanley has asked me to invite a small select group of neighbors to drop by for lunch," she said.

"The purpose of this get-together," Stanley said, as he passed the mayonnaise, "is to give you the in-depth background on how I made the decision to let Ardmore use the car tonight."

Buck Stimmus groaned. "Stanley," he said, "you did a sensible thing. You gave the kid a chance to take his girl to the drive-in tonight, buy her a hamburger and chew on her ear. Let us let the matter rest."

"When this matter was first brought to me for decision," Stanley began, ignoring Buck, "I noted that this household lacked machinery for processing a decision on this magnitude. Accordingly, my first step was to set up a council of automotive advisers, administered by Mavis and chaired by me in my capacity as member ex officio. The council's first act was creation of three subcommittees, assigned to analyze and report on Ardmore's driving qualifications, the level of traffic activity to be expected on Saturday night and the—."

"Excuse me, Stanley," said Jim Shimmo, the neighborhood Goldwater Republican, "but I've got an appointment to see the Senators play the White Sox at 1:30 this afternoon."

"And what's more," Buck Stimmus said, "he's taking all of us with him."

There was a mass rising from the table with great relief.

"None of this, you understand, is for direct quotation," Stanley cautioned us.

"We won't mention it to a soul," Jim Shimmo assured him. Outside everybody felt bad about not caring more about Stanley's decision-making process.

☆ ☆ ☆

"Let's ask Stanley to go to the ball game," Buck said. So we went back and asked him.

"I will have a decision on that next Wednesday," Stanley said. "We'll be over Wednesday to hear how you decided it," Buck told him.

Jim Shimmo was quiet all the way to the ball park. In the third inning he said, "I wonder when Nixon begins deciding to see a ball game?"

"Don't ask," Buck cautioned. "He may start telling us."

Rivers, ABM Hit By House Critic

Rep. Mendel Rivers of South Carolina, one of the most powerful men in Washington because of his championship of the military-industrial complex, had a delightful time at the Harry Byrd reception the other Sunday. Every spring for years the late Sen. Harry F. Byrd invited Members of Congress to his apple orchard farm in the Shenandoah Valley.

Byrd's son, Sen. Harry Flood Byrd Jr., has done the same. And the silver-maned congressman from Charleston, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, was one of those who relaxed and pontificated at the Byrd party.

He also had some vigorous ideas on passing the anti-ballistic missile system on behalf of President Nixon.

"Why don't you fellows hurry up and get that ABM out of the Senate committee?" Rivers told both Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama and Sen. Byrd, the latter a member of the armed services committee.

Rivers made it clear that his House Armed Services Committee was not going to act until the Senate acted first.

"Then," he said, "I'll tack my riot control amendment and my student crackdown rider on the bill, and you will see how fast it whizzes through Congress."

☆ ☆ ☆

Without any flag-waving, a Democratic congressman from Detroit, Lucien Nedzi, has bucked the mighty Rivers, a man who doesn't care much for those who buck his power. However, Nedzi has mobilized eight members of Rivers' own armed services committee to oppose him on the ABM.

Some congressmen have wondered how Nedzi, a quiet and hard-working congressman, would have the temerity to oppose "ole man" Rivers. The chairman from South Carolina, however, treats him with respect. He defers to Nedzi's views, listens carefully, never cuts him off.

Not so, however, with two other congressmen: Leggett of California, a sharp lawyer who cross-examines witnesses intensively, which gets Rivers' dander up; ex-Prof. Whalen of Ohio, also a sharp questioner — which irks Rivers greatly.

All eight, however, with the possible exception of Gov. Stafford, are sticking to their guns against the ABM. They believe, with Nedzi, that the United States should try negotiation with the Russians first.

"If we don't," he says, "we could be swept into a whirlwind of an expensive and an imponderable arms race without end. Faced with such a prospect, we should try once more, and before all to take the initiative for world peace through arms agreements and control."

Churches Take Black 'Demands' For Money At Face Value To Surprise Of Negro Leaders

One Negro militant storms an altar to demand $500,000,000 in "reparations for 300 years of racial oppression" and church elders around the country rush into conclave to consider seriously what has got to be the greatest put-on in recent times.

Does anybody REALLY believe James Forman expects organized religion to hand over the money?

(Not that it isn't there. American religion is Big Business — with an estimated annual income from tax-free gifts alone of $6,500,000,000.)

But not even Mr. Forman — who reached a new peak in his militant career when he crashed communion services in New York's Riverside Church to read his "Black Manifesto" — could expect to get everything he demands.

His list of reparations reads more like experimental blackmail — with Marxist overtones. It met with shock and surprise — but it's likely that Mr. Forman was as surprised as anybody when the churches took the demand at face value.

For openers, he asked Riverside Church alone for: 60 percent of its annual investment income, a Negro-negotiated share of all its assets, rent-free space in the church, toll-free telephone privileges, and unrestricted use of the church's FM radio station 12 hours a day.

But the Rev. Dr. Ernest T. Campbell, who took an ecclesiastical walk when Mr. Forman interrupted his worship service, said the principle of reparations has "sound theological underpinnings," agreed that American Christianity had profited from the "black man's bondage" and agreed to give a "fixed amount" of Riverside's income to projects for the poor.

The Rev. Jon L. Regier, head of missions for the National Council of Churches, took it seriously, too.

"It's something white America has to face," he said, "and we haven't done it. If we agree there is guilt on the part of whites, then we must agree that efforts at restitution are valid. The only question is how to do it."

Mr. Forman's vision of himself as a kind of "black Robin Hood" grew brighter.

Borrowing a dramatic bit from Martin Luther, he next taped his manifesto to the door of the Lutheran Church's national headquarters in Manhattan. Their share, he said, would be $50,000,000. Plus 60 percent of their annual income.

☆ ☆ ☆

Then he appeared in San Antonio, where the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church was in session. The demand from them was $80,000,000 in cash, 60 percent of their annual income, and the deed to their lands in the South and Southwest to help poor Negroes and Mexican-Americans.

That proposal, too, received serious attention. After some sharp debate, in which one delegate called the demands "racist, blackmailing poppycock," the Council voted to start a $50,000,000 fund-raising drive to help the poor and to give "depressed minorities" some $200,000 immediately.

From the Roman Catholic Church Mr. Forman asked $200,000,000. Officials turned him down. But in Chicago a priest agreed to write him a letter acknowledging his church's responsibility to Chicago Negroes.

The Jewish Defense League held a meeting (some members showed up with baseball bats and iron pipes), announced that they came here long after slavery, and didn't owe Mr. Forman anything.

Rabbi Meir Kahane accused him of not giving "a rap about black rights — he's no better than a hooded Klansman."

☆ ☆ ☆

In New York the Presiding Episcopal Bishop, the Right Rev. Horace W. B. Donegan, rejected the campaign and said he would, if he had to, call the police to protect his people from "the rule of irrationality and unreason."

Later the Executive Council agreed to expand its anti-poverty program.

The United Methodist Board of Missions met to consider a multimillion-dollar demand, presented in a sit-in that closed the church's offices. They agreed to offer a $300,000 fund.

In London the World Council of Churches heard Sen. George S. McGovern warn delegates that "the black man is obviously reaching the end of his endurance."

"We had better come to grips with the problem," he said. "Or the church will become an irrelevant institution."

The Book does say: "Ask and ye shall receive."

Czech Churches Able To Share Freedoms, Schneeberger Reveals

Omaha (AP) — The Rev. Wilem Schneeberger of Prague, Czechoslovakia, district superintendent of the United Methodist Church of Czechoslovakia, said here Tuesday the churches in his homeland have suffered no repression despite their strong stand in favor of the government of President Svoboda during the Russian occupation.

The Rev. Mr. Schneeberger was in Omaha to speak to the Nebraska Conference of the United Methodist Church.

He told a news conference that churches shared freedoms gained by the Czech people under the Svoboda new Czech government.

"Before, we had some difficulty teaching religion in the schools. It was allowed by the constitution, but in practice it was difficult," he said.

He said the Catholic Church, which claims about two-thirds of the Czech population, was more tightly restricted than the Protestant denominations.

The minister pointed to what he believes is the common mistake among Americans.

"You always speak of the eastern bloc, the Communist bloc. But there is more diversity than that. Alexander Dubcek spoke only for Czechoslovakia in trying to make things better for the nation. To do so, he saw the need for full democratic freedom," the clergyman said.

According to the Rev. Mr. Schneeberger, 41, shortages of food and fuel exist, but the Czech borders are open and there is no danger for Americans visiting the country.

Meanwhile, the Nebraska conference acknowledged the church's guilt" in supporting "discriminatory structures in our society" but declined "the demand of certain of our black breathren for financial reparations."

A resolution adopted at the 109th annual session responded to the "accusation, demand and threat" contained in a so-called "Black Manifesto" demanding $500 million in 'reparations' from religious institutions for their implication in the capitalist and imperialist power structure," the preamble to the document said.

Discrimination by the power structure, "which has inflicted grevious injury upon black Americans through its systems of economic, social and political discrimination and exploitation," has resulted more from "human sinfulness" than any inherent defect in capitalism, the resolution said.

The attainment of economic and political power by all minority groups, including the Indian, the Mexican-American and the rural white poor, was called a legitimate goal deserving the support of the church.

'Sharing Of Power'

But the church maintained that "the equitable sharing of power by all such groups in our society" would not most effectively result from the church giving away what economic power it possesses."

Instead the resolution recommended that the church use its economic power and influence "to assist the powerless to gain sufficient political and economic power so that they can reform the structures of our society to protect their own interests."

Some 650 delegates attended the opening business session held under the chairmanship of Bishop Noah W. Moore Jr., resident bishop of the denomination in Nebraska and the first Negro bishop to head the predominately white Nebraska United Methodists. The meeting was scheduled to continue through Thursday.

Attorney's Death Is Attributed To Natural Causes

The death of James F. (Jay) Groth, 27, who died Saturday, was attributed to natural causes according to results of an autopsy, Chief Deputy County Attorney William Blue said Tuesday.

The death of Mr. Groth, who was involved in a minor accident Saturday afternoon, was not related to the accident, Blue said.

A recent graduate of the University of Nebraska Law College, Mr. Groth was a member of the law firm, Groth and Biehn.

Sales Tax Exemption Rule Is Lifted

By Associated Press

Nebraska's Legislature lifted Tuesday a requirement that governmental subdivisions and religious, charitable, educational and non-profit organizations pay sales taxes on purchases of less than $100.

The exemption-broadening measure, LB1046, received 40-0 approval on final reading.

Subdivisions benefitting include the state, any county, township, city, village or rural or suburban fire protection district when the purchases involved are used in a governmental capacity.

Present law provides that religious, charitable, educational and non-profit organizations will pay the sales taxes on purchases under $100 but may claim a refund later.

LB1046 rewrites the law to grant exemption flatly on all purchases without refund claim requirements.

The bill was sponsored by Sens. Thomas C. Kennedy of Newman Grove, Theodore C. Wenzlaff of Sutton and Harold T. Moylan of Omaha.

A 31-3 approving vote was given a bill sponsored by Omaha Sen. Edward R. Danner, LB1043, directing the Omaha School District to provide summer classes for children 6 to 15 who fail to make satisfactory progress during the regular school year.

Casting the dissenting votes on LB1043 were Omaha Sens. Clifton Batchelder, Bill K. Bloom and Richard Proud.

Summer Classes

The Danner bill provides that summer classes shall not run longer than half days, and shall emphasize chiefly reading, language arts and arithmetic "and those areas of personality development especially in need of development."

The summer school teachers are directed to seek to develop in the students such personality characteristics as pride, self confidence and self control.

Still another bill passed Tuesday permits a motorist to drive an unregistered motor vehicle to the county treasurer's office for the purpose of getting it registered, without being subject to arrest for operating an unregistered motor vehicle.

The list of bills passed Tuesday (E-emergency clause):

LB893 (Orme) — Permitting unregistered motor vehicles to be driven to the county treasurer's office for purposes of registration. (E). 39-2.

LB962 (Pedersen, Simpson, Syas) — Providing that local health boards shall set and review pay schedules for members of the staff. 39-1.

LB1046 (Kennedy, Wenzlaff, Moylan) — Eliminating requirement that purchases must exceed $100 before they become exempt from sales or use taxes in the case of religious and nonprofit organizations and governmental subdivisions. 40-0. related law. (E). 40-0.

LB1071 (Pedersen, Adamson, Swanson) — Transferring from State Board of Education to education commissioner certain duties with respect to issuing certificates of high school equivalency; reducing from 21 to 18 the minimum age for recipients, and otherwise revising related law. (E) 40-0.

LB1218 (Pedersen) — Increasing from five to eight per cent the interest on delayed final payment to contractor for work performed for sanitary and improvement districts. (E). 36-0.

LB1043 (Danner) — Directing Omaha School District to provide summer classes for children 6 to 15 who fail to make satisfactory progress during regular school year. 31-3.

Pedersen Won't Ask Londay Impeachment

By United Press International

State Sen. Henry F. Pedersen of Omaha said Tuesday he has decided not to attempt to have State Board of Education member John Londay of Omaha impeached.

"I don't think it would do any good now," he said. "The man I sought to impeach will be up for re-election next year and I'm certain he won't be re-elected."

Pedersen had a resolution to impeach Londay drawn up after a letter from Londay to board member John Wagoner of Grand Island was made public in April. The latter told of a plan to "execute" State Education Commissioner Floyd Miller in a "power play."

Miller was fired by the board last Wednesday.

Resignation Urged

But Pedersen said that while he won't attempt to impeach Londay, he thinks the Omaha board member could perform a "service to the people" by resigning his seat immediately.

"He has destroyed his effectiveness on the board by admitting he would engage in politics and then doing it," Pedersen said. "It would be in the best interest of the state for him to resign so that at least a portion of respect could come back to the department."

Pedersen, who said he lives in Londay's district, said Londay "certainly did not represent the residents of his district" in voting to fire Miller.

Right Not Questioned

The Omaha lawmaker said he did not mean to say that he questioned the board's right to fire Miller.

"What I am critical of was the way it was done," he said. "If the board members felt they had the charges against Dr. Miller sufficient to discharge him, then they should not have dallied with the people, the Legislature and the department as they did."

He said the board's action in firing Miller has resulted in "apparent disruption of a department of 500 people and caused people to question, statewide, all decisions of the board."

A resolution to censure the five board members who voted to fire Miller is being held in the Education Committee and is expected to be acted on by the committee Wednesday.

Omaha Considers Text 'Rise Of American Nation'

Omaha (AP) — Supt. Owen Knutzen of the Omaha school system said a new senior high school text which gives more emphasis to the role of minority races in American history is being considered for Omaha.

The book, "The Rise of the American Nation," was recommended by a committee of eight students and staff members after a year-long study of new materials.

The book covers the period from the reconstruction after the Civil War to the present.

Senators Approve Funds For June ETV Coverage

The Legislature Tuesday decided to fund continued educational television coverage of its sessions during June at a cost of $2,310.

The Nebraska Educational Television Network will tape legislative sessions either two mornings a week, or for a full day, for rebroadcast.

Foundation funds for telecasting the sessions prior to this time have been exhausted. Telecasting costs amount to about $770 a week.

Lawmakers adopted Sen. Terry Carpenter's motion to fund continued telecasting on a 21-12 vote.

The Legislature will decide before July 1 whether to continue the operation following that date.

Amendment Is Proposed To Car Impoundment Bill

By Associated Press

Sen. Lester Harsh of McCook Tuesday proposed an amendment to a pending bill by which motorists arrested for drunken driving could have their cars impounded for a period of two months to one year.

Action was referred by the Legislature until the amendment appears in the daily legislative journal.

Harsh's amendment would be tacked onto Scottsbluff Sen. Terry Carpenter's LB688, which calls for the impoundment of vehicles driven by minors arrested for possessing alcohol.

Carpenter's theory in the proposed bill was that there is no worse punishment than to take away a teenager's car.

Sen. C. W. Holmquist of Oakland pointed out, however, that a convicted drunken driver loses his operator's license, making him unable to drive legally anyway.

The impoundment penalty is "punishment before the trial," objected Sen. J. James Waldron of Callaway during brief floor discussion on the Harsh amendment before action was deferred.

The bill is currently resting on select file.

Warner To Seek 2-Year Term For Ed Chief

Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly disclosed Tuesday he plans introduction of a bill in the Legislature establishing a two-year term for the state education commissioner.

Present law fixes no term for the commissioner, and the State Board of Education, in firing Dr. Floyd A. Miller last week, relied on advice of counsel that the education commissioner can be dismissed at will and without stated cause.

Warner said the dismissal of Dr. Miller without giving him a chance to know and answer the charges against him showed the need for the kind of a law he has in mind.

Warner said the bill he is having drafted would set a commissioner's term expiring on Feb. 1 of every odd-numbered year, or about three months after a general election.

That would give each newly-reorganized State Board of Education the option of retaining the commissioner or replacing him.

Four of the eight state board members are elected each two years.

Under the proposed legislation, a commissioner could only be removed during his term through presentation of charges, after a public hearing and proof that grounds for removal actually existed.

Present state law gives the state board the authority to fix a term for the commissioner, but no such term has been fixed for a number of years.

Fees, Dormitory Costs, Rentals Going Up At Peru

Peru (UPI) — Student fees, dormitory room and board costs, and married student housing rentals will be higher at Peru State College next fall, President Neal S. Gomon said.

"We want to keep the costs of a college education at the lowest possible level but we must also face the realities of higher prices for services, equipment and maintenance," Gomon said. "Despite upward revision of fees, board and room, and rentals, Peru State College still offers a quality program at minimum cost."

Next fall, board and room charges will be $366 a semester, up $24 over 1968-69. An additional fee of $10 a semester will be charged all full-time students to defray the costs of an expanded cultural and entertainment program requested by students through the Student Governing Association and the Campus Center Board.

As of July 1, rental of one-bedroom student apartments will be raised from $68 a month to $70 and two-bedroom apartments from $80 to $85.

Danner Eyeing 'Chance' Funds

Sen. Edward Danner of Omaha informed the Legislature Tuesday he may try to introduce a bill which would give state funds to Omaha's Project Chance for handicapped children.

The lack of federal funds has jeopardized the program, although volunteers have strived to keep it going, Danner said.

He said his bill, which can be introduced now only with unanimous consent of the lawmakers under rules adopted by the Legislature, would require an appropriation of about $60,000 for the coming biennium.

Batchelder Still Considering Bid To Revive 'Defense Act'

Sen. Clifton Batchelder of Omaha said Tuesday he is "still thinking about" an attempt to raise his "self defense act" which has been tentatively scrapped by Gov. Norbert Tiemann's veto.

The bill, which passed on final reading on a 33-8 vote last week, would have permitted Nebraskans to use "any means necessary" to protect themselves and others from criminal acts.

Tiemann vetoed the bill, LB925, on several grounds, and said "the answer to better law enforcement is not vigilante law enforcement."

Thirty votes in the Legislature would override the veto.

Batchelder said he has received letters from all over the country — including Tennessee and Kentucky — expressing support for the measure. "The only one I've had against it is from the governor," he said.

Navy Halts Search For 73 Sailors

Pearl Harbor, Hawaii (AP) — The Navy gave up for lost Tuesday the 73 men missing from a U.S. destroyer cut in half in the South China Sea by an Australian aircraft carrier.

A spokesman said a search by some 10 ships from three nations has been called off, adding: "We have absolute confidence that we have picked up all survivors."

Most of those missing from the USS Frank E. Evans were presumed asleep in their bunks in the forward part of the ship, the spokesman said. That part sank quickly after being sliced off before dawn Tuesday, Vietnam time, by the carrier Melbourne.

5,400 Feet Deep

The severed forward section of the Evans, which gained fame in World War II by surviving a kamikaze attack, went down in 5,400 feet of water, the spokesman said.

He added, discussing the 24-hour-long search: "They had a moonlit night and a sunny day to look for survivors."

Navy headquarters listed one American seaman dead, six officers and 67 enlisted men missing from the Evans and 199 survivors, including the skipper, Cmdr. A. S. McLemore.

The question of why the two ships, both equipped with radar, collided remains a mystery. The weather was clear and the seas calm as the destroyer escorted the carrier as it took on planes.

Then suddenly the 705-foot Melbourne plowed through the predawn darkness and right into the port side of the 376-foot Evans, cutting it in two.

The destroyer's bow sank in two minutes, but the aft section remained afloat in tow by the Melbourne while survivors boarded the carrier. There was no fire.

Court of Inquiry Set

In Washington, the Navy said a court of inquiry would be appointed to investigate the collision. Earlier it said the investigation would be carried out by an investigative board.

The court of inquiry — the same type of body that investigated the seizure of the intelligence Pueblo by North Korea — will have higher-ranking officers as its members than would an investigative board.

Rear Adm. J. H. King Jr., commander of Antisubmarine Warfare Group One, was to have been senior member of the investigative board. The head of the court of inquiry has not been named.

10 Russians Hit Rebirth Of Stalinism

© New York Times Service

Moscow — Ten Soviet citizens have addressed an appeal to the world conference of Communist parties opening here Thursday to consider "the rebirth of Stalinist methods in our country."

The signers asserted that after the fall of Nikita S. Khrushchev from power nearly five years ago, the process of democratization was reversed and independent belief is again being suppressed. The appeal declared:

"Again as under Stalin the alternative is silence. Again as in those terrible times we are deprived of the possibility of expressing our convictions.

"But despite persecution, people cannot be silenced. They protest. After a half century of socialism in our country, the Soviet people can not agree to identify socialism with Stalinism."

Russians Orbit 285th Cosmos

Moscow (AP) — The Soviet Union launched the 285th of its unmanned Cosmos satellites Tuesday to continue space research, Tass news agency reported.

The satellite is circling the earth at a distance of 123-330 miles.

Nixon, Thieu Prepare To Announce Unilateral Reduction In U.S. Forces

© New York Times Service

By HEDRICK SMITH

Washington — United States officials are making preparations for a joint announcement at Midway by President Nixon and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu of the first unilateral reductions in American forces in Vietnam, officials said Tuesday.

Knowledgeable informants said the announcement was considered likely but that a final decision to go ahead with the cutback in American forces awaits agreement by the two leaders during their one-day meeting in the Pacific island Sunday.

Well-placed informants said several senior Nixon administration officials believe the Midway rendezvous affords the proper, positive occasion for such an announcement. Their reasoning is that a joint announcement would demonstrate solidarity on the troop issue and undercut in advance any speculation that either Washington or Saigon was trying to set the timetable for troop reductions.

In a news conference at Taipei, Formosa, Thieu indicated the agenda for the Midway talks would include "replacement of U.S. troops by South Vietnamese troops," paving the way for withdrawal of some of the 540,000-man American force in Vietnam.

Military and civilian sources said the administration was thinking in terms of pulling out about 50,000 troops this year, with the first units starting their withdrawal about Sept. 1.

Officials said the actual package of American units was still being put together. One possibility, Vietnam planners said, was to withdraw part of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division, operating in the Mekong Delta south of Saigon, and part of another combat division operating elsewhere in the country.

Some informants cautioned that the withdrawal announcement might include a proviso that the rate of withdrawal would be affected by the response of enemy forces.

Humphrey Lashes Out At Neglect Of Hungry

Atlanta, Ga. (AP) — Former vice president Hubert H. Humphrey attacked the Nixon administration Tuesday for what he called its failure to come to grips with the nation's problems of hunger and poverty.

"Millions go hungry . . . while a government twiddles its thumbs," Humphrey declared in a commencement address at Morehouse College.

"We're paying people in American agriculture not to meet this need," Humphrey said: "When will this upside down moral and economic philosophy get righted?"

The former vice president said the nation can begin to feed its poor "right now" if it is willing to spend the money.

"We have the resources. My question . . . to this nation is, do we have the will? Are we willing to make the commitment?" said Humphrey.

He characterized the Nixon administration's program in the area of hunger as "timid . . . indefensible . . . really mostly words," and added:

"Any country that regularly finances a Pentagon budget in excess of $75 billion a year can surely find the several billion dollars necessary to eradicate hunger."

Humphrey also cited reports that the administration may go slow on the hunger problem, pending a study of welfare reform.

"I've been in government long enough to know there are a lot of slow learners," he said. "I'm here to tell you that the meal you miss today, you can't make up in the 1970s."

SDS Hearings Open With Little Disruption

© New York Times Service

Washington — The House Internal Security Committee, no stranger to disruption on its own grounds, opened its investigation Tuesday into whether the Students for a Democratic Society pose a "serious threat" to the nation.

It began with the hoopla and heavy security typically associated with the House Un-American Activities Committee — which was the panel's name until this year — when it received a new name, five new members and a new chairman, Richard H. Ichord of Missouri.

But the first day of hearings quickly passed into tedium — a kind of freshman course in the SDS, its origin, rhetoric, goals, personalities and participation in campus disorders. Four witnesses testified on personal contacts with SDS dating some months back: a rookie policeman, a reporter, a priest and a committee investigator.

As the committee members assembled, the corridors outside the hearing room in the Cannon House Office Building were thick with television crews, photographers and policemen bearing squawking walkie-talkies. Spectators, many of them young, had to apply for special admission passes.

The first witness was a police officer who infiltrated an SDS rally in April at the University of Florida in Gainesville.

Bradshaw Mallard, a former student at Florida, told of how one SDS member "threatened my life" after his identity was discovered at the rally.

Fairmont Pool Issue Defeated

Lincoln Star Special

Fairmont — A $27,000 swim pool bond issue was rejected here Tuesday by Fairmont voters in a special election.

The unofficial tally was 139 for and 115 against the issue. However, a 60% majority was needed for passage. Eleven absentee ballots would not change the outcome, City Clerk Andrew J. Anderson said.

Explosions Hit Gary, Indiana; Seven Injured

Gary, Ind. (AP) — A series of gas explosions raced through a 10-square-block residential area of Gary Tuesday, leaving streets pockmarked with shattered homes.

Seven persons were reported injured, and police ordered a 56-square-block area evacuated.

Six homes were demolished; three with roofs lifted off and insides completely gutted. Fire officials said 25 houses in all were damaged by fire. Rescuers began a house-to-house search for victims. Five persons were admitted to Gary hospitals with burns, one in critical condition, and two were treated and released.

Mayor Richard G. Hatcher said the explosions apparently resulted from a faulty gas main regulator that allowed too much pressure to build up. He said sparks in houses probably ignited the explosions.

Lincoln church news is carried on a special page in the "Sunday Journal and Star."

Nixon Calls On Students To Stand Against Rule Of Force

Madison, S.D. (AP) — President Nixon struck at campus insurrections Tuesday. He called on students to uphold the processes of freedom and faculty members to "stand for something — and most especially, to stand for the rule of reason against the rule of force."

In a speech at General Beadle State College, Nixon surveyed some of the troubles of the times and what he views as the challenge to historic American values.

In these deeply troubled and profoundly unsettled times, Nixon said, "old and young shout across a chasm of misunderstanding — and the more loudly they shout, the wider the chasm grows."

Severest Challenge

He said institutions are undergoing their severest challenge — but not from the physical force and threats of force that have wracked cities and colleges because: "We have the power to strike back if need be, and to prevail."

"Drugs, crime, campus revolts, racial discord, draft resistance — on every hand," the President said, "we find old standards violated, old values discarded, old precepts ignored. A vocal minority of the young are opting out of the process by which a civilization maintains its continuity; the passing on of values from one generation to the next."

Here in America's agricultural heartland, Nixon concentrated more on domestic strife in language that was both tough and philosophical.

He said a great many people lately have become impatient with the democratic process. Some of the more extreme, he said, scorn persuasion in favor of coercion and try to bully authority into yielding to their demands.

"On college campuses," he said, "they draw support from faculty members who should know better."

"The student who invades an administration building, roughs up the dean, rifles the files and issues nonnegotiable demands may have some of his demands met by a permissive university administration," Nixon said. "But the greater his 'victory' the more he will have undermined the security of his own rights.

"In a free society, the rights of none are secure unless the rights of all are respected. It is precisely the strusture of law and custom that he has chosen to violate—the process of freedom — by which the rights of all are protected."

But the President said the process of freedom will be threatened unless some of the cries of the young are heeded; cries for honesty — intellectual, personal and public honesty.

Agnew Approved Profitable Deal

. . . LAND NOW SELLING AT $93,000 AN ACRE

Annapolis, M. (UPI) — Spiro T. Agnew, one month before he resigned as governor to become vice president, okayed a sale of publicly owned land at $100 an acre to a developer who is now selling it for $93,000 an acre, according to state records.

Agnew, as governor, sat on the Maryland Board of Public Works, an administrative board given great fiscal power by the Maryland constitution. The other members of the board were the Democratic state comptroller, Louis Goldstein, and the Democratic state treasurer, John K. Luetkemeyer.

All three signed deeds Dec. 20 turning over 190 acres of state-owned bayside marsh land in the Atlantic Coast resort of Ocean City to Caine Keys, Inc., a real estate firm headed by James B. Caine of nearby Salisbury.

The decision by the board ended a four-year legal battle by Caine to obtain the land. The fight was over whether the state or Worcester County had the power to grant him the right to develop the land.

Caine has filled it in, subdivided it into 12 lots per acre, and is asking for $7,800 to $14,000 for the lots. More than half have been sold, and if all go for the asking price, the total profit may approach $10 million.

A spokesman for the Vice President said Tuesday the transaction "as far as the Vice President's staff is concerned, is all a matter of public record."

Riot Study: Firm Restraint Needed

© New York Times Service

Washington — The National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence has concluded from extensive studies that the United States, in order to avoid anarchy of repression, should find a way to strike a balance between the use of police power and the toleration of agitation for change.

This is to be one of the principal points on the commission's final report, now scheduled for the early fall.

On the basis of studies of history and of current trends in the United States, the commission believes there must be firm but restrained use of force to control crime and violent political action. But it also is concerned about the possibility of the excessive use of force to put down disruptive dissent.

American political and social institutions, the commission has found, have lagged behind communications and technology in yielding to change. In the on's view it is important for authority to give way to conditions that create change.

The commission, appointed by President Johnson following the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy last June 5, is planning to make some strong criticisms of American society but to word them in a way that will not increase dissension.

For example, there is opinion within the commission that although Americans are now deeply concerned about the rise in crime and violence, they have themselves to blame by not allotting more than an infinitesimal portion of their resources to crime detection and justice and by permitting the indiscriminate use and possession of firearms.

JFK Pushed As Name Of Apollo Craft

New York (AP) — The Long Island newspaper Newsday suggested Tueday that the spacecraft carrying the Apollo 11 astronauts for their moon landing next month be named the John F. Kennedy.

"If we do succeed, " the newspaper said in an editorial, "John F. Kennedy, more than any other public figure, will have inspired our achievement. For he was the first president to make the exploration of space a national priority, and the first to point us definitely toward the moon . . .

"It seems fitting that the leadership of John F. Kennedy be recognized as the culmination of his vision is reached."

Ex-Governor, Cahill Carry N.J. Primary

Newark, N.J. (AP) — Former Gov. Robert B. Meyner, a Democrat, and Rep. William T. Cahill, a Republican, won their parties' gubernatorial nominations Tuesday in New Jersey's primary and will face each other in the November general election.

Meyner coasted to an easy victory over five rivals, leading his nearest opponent by a margin of more than 3-2. He withstood dual challenges from the Hudson County Democratic machine and a new coalition of liberals.

Cahill defeated Rep. Charles W. Sandman Jr. in a tight race in a field of five GOP candidates. Sandman, the only unmistakable conservative in the Republican race, suffered an earlier disappointment, losing a neck-and-neck contest in the 1965 GOP primary.

Republican leaders were jubilant at the outcome. "We're in better shape now than anytime in the past 16 years," one high ranking official said. "This is the strongest candidate we could get."

Supporters of Meyner also expressed confidence the Democrats would win in November.

The candidates sought a position vacated by Gov. Richard J. Hughes, a Democrat, who is forbidden by the state constitution from seeking a third consecutive term.

New Jersey and Virginia, with a July 15 primary, are the only states electing governors this year. The race in New Jersey, a swing state in national elections, is considered a good indication of national trends.

Mr. Lyster will be a senior at the University of Nebraska.

MISS MARY LIND

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Mary Lind of Lincoln, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence W. Lind of Stromsburg, to Clifton Lambert Critchfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Critchfield of Lincoln, is announced this morning by the bride-elect's parents.

The wedding is planned for Saturday, July 12, and the ceremony will take place in Stromsburg.

Mr. Critchfield is a former student at the University of Nebraska.

Courtesies

The party calendar is filled with prenuptial courtesies for popular bride-elect, Miss Jan Ann Williams, and her fiance Lt. Kenneth Larry McGill of Ozark, Ala., whose marriage will be an event of Friday, June 6.

Wednesday morning, the soon-to-be bride will be presented a kitchen shower at an informal morning coffee for which Mrs. Robert Simon and Mrs. James Weesner will be hostesses at the home of Mrs. Simon.

This afternoon, Miss Williams and her mother, Mrs. Jon T. Williams, will be luncheon hostesses at the Lincoln Country Club for feminine members of the bridal party.

Miss Williams and her fiance will share honors Wednesday evening at a dinner for which Dr. and Mrs. E. Stewart Maness will be host and hostess at their home to members of the family, the bridal party and out-of-town wedding guests.

The bride-elect and Lt. McGill also will be honored on Thursday evening when Dr. and Mrs. Jon T. Williams will entertain for their daughter and her fiance at dinner at the Lincoln Country Club.

For the late afternoon ceremony, which will be solemnized at 5 o'clock at Trinity Methodist Church, Miss Williams has chosen Mrs. Jon T. Williams Jr., of Wichita, Kan., and Miss Kathy Leuthauser as her honor attendants.

The bridesmaids will be Miss Melinda Ann McCaul of Wichita, Kan.; Lt. McGill's sister, Mrs. Terry Lucky of Ozark, Ala.; and Miss Debora Maness. Miss Pamela Sands will attend Miss Williams as junior bridesmaid, and the flower girl will be Miss Linda Roper.

Serving Lt. McGillas best man will be John Lee Donaldson of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and the groomsmen and ushers will include Dr. E. Stewart Maness, Jon T. Williams, Jr. of Wichita, brother of the bride, Lt. Paul Pinard, Ft. Benning, Ga., James Anthony Callahan, Boston, Mass., and Carl J. Norden, III. The ringbearer will be Jim Burton, and lighting the chancel candles will be Mark Maness and Peter Allman.

The wedding will take place at St. John's Church in Lincoln on Wednesday evening, July 2.

Both Miss Yearley and her fiance are students at the University of Nebraska where Mr. Lucas is a member of Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity.

PEO Convention

Nearly 300 members of PEO in Nebraska are attending the annual spring convention of the organization being held this week at O'Donnell Hall on the Nebraska Wesleyan University campus.

Mrs. William F. Johnson of Kimball, president of the Nebraska Chapter, is presiding officer at the three-day meeting, which opened Tuesday afternoon with an address by Mrs. Harvey Busch of Williamsville, N.Y., officer of the Supreme Chapter, followed by a Memorial Service at the Wesleyan Fine Arts auditorium.

A convention highlight will be the Wednesday evening banquet at Pershing Auditorium. The program, "A Century of Love," will observe the organization's centennial anniversary, and featured speaker will be Dr. Vance Rogers, chancellor of Nebraska Wesleyan.

Chapel Ceremony

The wedding of Miss Karen Elizabeth Astner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William George Astner of Clinton, Mo., and Douglas Melvin Hill, son of Dr. and Mrs. Melvin S. Hill, took place Tuesday afternoon, June 3, in the College View Academy Chapel. All-white blossoms formed the background for the 4 o'clock service, which was solemnized by Elder Richard L. Warner of Hutchinson, Minn.

Wearing floor-length frocks of powder blue crepe were Miss Jan Astner, Boulder, Colo., the honor attendant; the bridesmatron, Mrs. Allan Segebartt; and the junior bridesmaid, Miss Alberta Astner, Boulder, Colo.

Serving Mr. Hill as best man was Charles R. Neal of Pleasant Dale, and the corps of ushers included Darwin Johnson, Rochester, Minn.; Gary Davis, Rogersville, Mo.; Darrell Leonhardt, Larry Crawford and Allan Segebartt.

The bride appeared in a slender gown of white peau de soie. Venise lace edged the wide bertha collar of the short-sleeved bodice, and the lace was repeated at the hem of the skirt and also bordered the cotillion train. Her lace-edged, illusion mantilla was draped over a petite silk cap, and she carried a crescent of yellow roses and stephanotis.

Mr. and Mrs. Hill, both students at Union College, will make their home at 4818 Bancroft. The bride is a member of Kappa Theta sorority, and Mr. Hill is a member of Sigma Iota Kappa.

ABBY

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I don't know how many wives get bawled out every week for spending too much money on groceries, but I am one of them.

I spend about $40 a week on groceries. Is this a lot? There are four of us. My husband, two children ages 4 and 5, and myself. My husband takes home about $150 a week, and we are only $300 in debt.

Now, here is why I have to spend so much for groceries. My husband has to have meat, potatoes, and gravy every night of the week. He won't eat leftovers, and he doesn't like casseroles. The only vegetable he'll eat is corn. He has to have REAL butter on everything. He demands a milkshake with EVERY meal! This means he consumes nearly two gallons of ice cream all by himself every week.

He insists on cake or pie and candy and cookies in every lunch, in addition to two sandwiches. In case you think he's a big man, he's not. He's 5 ft. 9 inches and weighs 160 pounds. Don't tell me to tell him to do the marketing. He won't go inside a store. He says that's MY job.

What would you do, if you were me?

PENNY PINCHER

DEAR PENNY PINCHER: Tune him out when he complains. Then invite a sharp life insurance agent over to sell your man a policy that will provide handsomely for you and the children after he has eaten himself into the grave. From what you say, it won't be long now.

DEAR ABBY: How can I possibly tell my pastor to please develop a firmer handshake? He is a wonderful man, but when he shakes your hand you feel as tho you have been holding an old dishrag.

ANNIE

DEAR ANNIE: It may not be necessary to TELL him if you show him. Next time YOU give HIS hand a good firm grip. Many men are reluctant to give a lady as firm a handshake as they'd give a man. It's a mistake. I don't recommend a bone crusher, but a firm handshake is the only meaningful kind.

DEAR ABBY: Today I laid my little 4-month-old baby down on the front seat of our car, and in a matter of seconds his little head was badly burned.

You see, the new cars all come with seat belts, which I am not used to. The car had been parked in the sun for a few hours and the metal clasps on the seat belt got red hot.

Abby, please warn other mothers of this hazard. I wish someone had warned me.

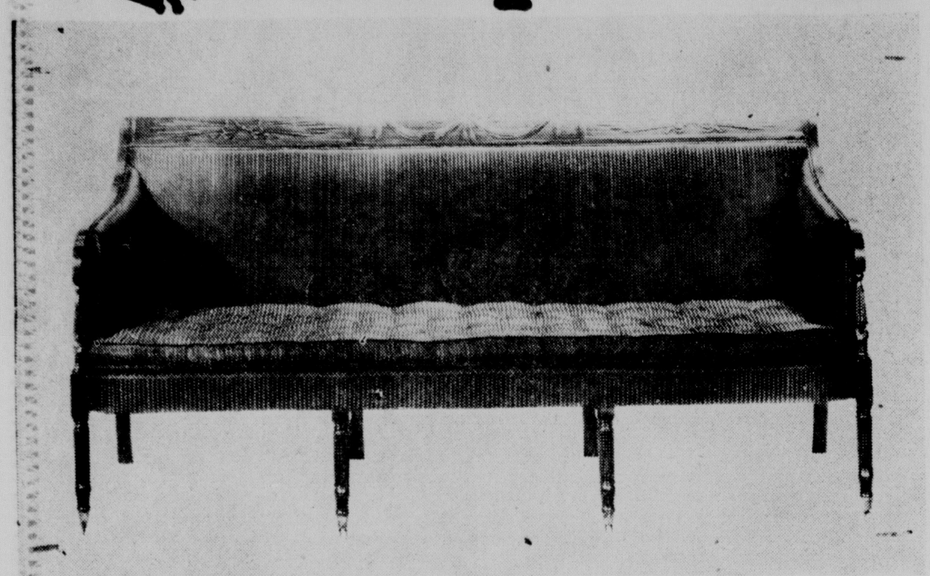
Know Your Antiques



Duncan Phyfe used a slim line upholstery on this early 19th Century sofa, and buttons tufted the thin fabric seat cushion. The wooden frame is mahogany. (Taft Museum, Cincinnati, Ohio.)

BY RALPH AND TERRY KOVEL

Clue to Furniture's Age Is Underneath the Upholstery

If you could strip the upholstery from an antique sofa what would you find? The type of material used for the cushion stuffing is a good indication of age. If you reupholster an antique, be sure to examine the wooden construction and the material used. Early American furniture was stuffed with feathers, dried Spanish moss, curly pigs' bristles, horsehair, or braided hanks of horsehair. The stuffing was held in place by muslin and a thin layer of cotton. The furniture was made with sleek lines. It was not overstuffed like some of the upholstery of the 20th century.

Springs were used in France during the time of Louis XV. They were not widely used in this country until after the middle of the 19th century.

Q. I saw a man carrying a handbag the other day, and in answer to my shock he told me that men always have carried handbags. Is this true?

Handbags for men are nothing new, even though the modern designers' ideas seems to have caused considerable comment. The Greeks used handbags in the days of Pericles. No pockets were to be found in togas. From the Middle Ages through the 18th century, all well dressed men carried a purse. It is said pockets were not even invented until the late 1500s.

The goatskin purse of the Scotsman, made to be worn with kilts, is seen even today. Elaborate needlepoint purses were carried by the well dressed 18th century gentlemen. The pocket was popular in men's clothes of the late 18th and 19th century. A vested suit could have as many as 130 pockets to store handkerchief, glasses, papers, or pen. Today's styles are eliminating pockets and the useful purse is being suggested.

Q. Are antique dealers honest?

A. Antique dealers are no different than any other type of businessmen. Some misrepresent only because of ignorance. Some might be dishonest. Most of the antique dealers are well-meaning, well-informed and reliable.

If you are making an investment in an antique, ask the dealer for a written description including the approximate age and condition of the piece. A reliable dealer will refund your money if the antique is ever proved to be other than represented. There are several organizations of antique dealers who insist their members maintain good business standards.

Remember, the antique dealer is in businses to make money. He can not give free appraisals and he must buy for less than he sells.

Exercise Fashionable In New York

By ANGELA TAYLOR
(c) New York Times Service

New York — If Le Pavillon is the mother of New York's French restaurants, Nicholas Kounovsky can be said to have fathered the exercise studios that keep restaurant-going women in proper shape.

Since the Russian-born Kounovsky started standing women on their heads back in 1940, Kounovsky-ing has become a household word. Not anybody's household, of course, but it's part of the language of women who also know the "in" hairdresser and the little jewel of a manicurist.

It was inevitable that sprouts would start shooting out of the Kounovsky tree. Two of these, run by former members of his staff, are flourishing. The newest is Gala, at 135 East 55th Street. Gala is operated by Gary (Novickij) and Larry (Lorence), two well-muscled young men who bounce on their sneakered feet like a pair of beach balls.

In the doorway to Gala hang the brightly colored drawstring bags in which exercisers store their leotards, just as they do at Kounovsky's and other studios.

In one airy white-walled room with nautical blue exercise mats, dark-haired Larry will be putting an intermediate class through its paces, while blond Gary is working with pregnant women next door.

In a back room, a men's class is going on and Van Johnson breezes in to pick up his gear and ask to be reminded to make appointments for June, when he returns from a European trip.

The intermediate class includes women from their early 20's to their 50's (one devotee is in her mid-60's). There is a reed-slim doctor's wife with snow-white hair, accompanied by her daughter, who is the mother of two. The brunette in her 20's is Vicki Polon, who is "everything assistant" to a film maker. She comes once a week on her lunch hour — "it's okay with him if I'm a little late. His girl friend comes, too, and he's sold on it."

Barbara Creaturo, a tall 27-year-old on her lunch hour from Cosmopolitan Magazine, where she is a copywriter, closes the window before she takes to swinging on the rings ("I might fly out.")

Miss Creaturo, who has been coming twice a week for less than a year, could qualify as a circus performer. She swings through the air with the greatest of ease, meaning the difficult "swan" position with only the stomach touching the trapeze.

Mrs. Bill Cullen, wife of the television personality, is also adept. She started to slip once, but Larry was right there, calmly giving instructions, and she regained her balance.

"That's what's so wonderful about the boys," said Eugenie Cowan, who works at the American Institute of Architcts and whose small body performs miracles of grace. "They're always right there, you forget to be afraid."

AROUND TOWN

As far as Lincoln is concerned that word 'monotony' might as well be tossed right out of the dictionary since no one in our town knows the meaning of it. Apparently the word is used only in non-active communities and Lincoln certainly is not included in that category.

This evening, for example there is to be activity at the home of Mrs. Fred Morgan this evening when Mrs. Morgan and Mrs. Leon Lichtenberg pay prenuptial courtesy to Miss Sharon Trester of Omaha whose marriage to Neil Anderson will be solemnized on June 14. The guests have been invited for an informal evening, and the bride-elect will be presented with a miscellaneous shower.

* * *

Another of the very popular June brides is Miss Kathy Amen whose marriage to John Davis of Charleston, N.C., will be solemnized on June 21 — Miss Amen, however, will be flying off to New Orleans to do a bit of house hunting — The trip, however, will be but a pause in her busy courtesy schedule. She will, before she leaves, have time for two parties — the brunch on June 8 which we already have mentioned — it's at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Taylor Greer — and a luncheon planned for June 12 when Mrs. Fred Craft, Mrs. William Wylie, Mrs. Donald Coy, Mrs. George Unthank and Mrs. Charles Roberts of Omaha, are hostesses at the University Club. The bride-elect will be presented with a hostess gift.

The next time you visit the Children's Zoo be sure to take a second look at the bend in "Memory Brook" and notice that it has some very special planting — Then remember Dwight D. Eisenhiwer, a great general, and the 37th President of the United States.

The story is that when Dwight Eisenhower died a Lincoln man sent a memorial to the Lincoln Foundation and directed it to the Children's Zoo. Recently the Zoo received a formal 'thank you' from Mrs. Eisenhower. It was signed Mamie Dowd Eisenhower in her own handwriting across the face of the envelope.

Who, What In Suburbia

Travel plans and guests seem to be the main news topics for the residents of suburbia this week and we predict that the same theme will continue to be tops for the remainder of the summer. Summer just naturally brings plans for vacations — both the weekend type and the week-or-more type and naturally, there will be some entertaining for friends and relatives who are vacationing through Lincoln.

Now that we've tempted you with all these comings-and-goings plus future activity, we will get down to business with news of some visitors from Utica. Arriving last Thursday evening at the Southbrook Summit home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vosta were their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bice and children, Karen, seven, and Steve, 13. They returned to Utica Friday evening after spending a pleasant Memorial Day holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Vosta.

The really exciting news we have about Mr. and Mrs. Bice isn't their brief visit, however. It is that they will become permanent Lincoln residents sometime this summer.

Busy with family activities on Memorial Day were Southbrook Summit residents Mr. and Mrs. Carel L. Stith who, on Friday, took Mr. Stith's mother, Mrs. E. J. Whitfield to Clay Center, Kan., for a family reunion at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Caley.

Also present at the family gathering were Mr. Stith's uncles and aunts, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Liston of Coffeyville, Kan. and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Grumson ofTruth or Consequences, N.M.

Last Saturday was a day for celebration at the Eastborough home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cranwell because that was the day Mr. Cranwell received his Masters of Arts and Sciences degree from the University of Nebraska. Joining Mr. and Mrs. Cranwell in a small observance of the occasion were Mr. Cranwell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Myrl Cranwell of Lamar, and her mother, Mrs. James Putman of Ogallala.

Although we aren't sure, we think that little Heather Jo Cranwell, who will be three months old in a few days, completely upstaged her father as center of attention. And we are sure she will be the main attraction this Sunday, June 8, when Mr. and Mrs. Cranwell go to Lamar to be the guests of the young lady's paternal grandparents. While they are visiting in Lamar, they will attend a family reunion of Mr. Cranwell's relatives and Heather Jo will be introduced to her paternal great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Cranwell of Imperial.

A most welcome visitor in the Maple Village home of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Rogers, Jimmie, nine, and Jamie, 10, was Mrs. Rogers' brother, James Pearson of Dallas, Tex. Mr. Pearson isn't by any means a stranger to the Lincoln area because he is an alumni of Nebraska Wesleyan University and did some graduate work at the University of Nebraska. Last Friday Mrs. Naomi Pearson of Hastings joined her son as a guest at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Rogers.

The guest of honor at a birthday party for her 11th birthday anniversary was Miss Diane Hayman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Hayman. The young Maple Village resident and six other young ladies enjoyed a picnic at Pioneers Park on Tuesday afternoon, June 3.

Opening lead — king of clubs.

It is a basic principle of bidding that you do not double an opponent for penalties if there is a chance that you might alert declarer to the nature of your hand and thus lead him into the winning line of play.

West learned this the hard way when he doubled South at six diamonds with the result that declarer played the hand somewhat unnaturally to bring home the slam. Had West maintained a prudent silence throughout, South would surely have gone down.

It was certainly not difficult for declarer to deduce that West's double was based on two probable trump tricks as well as other possible values. So when West led the king of clubs, South decided to organize his play so as to cut off one of West's natural trump tricks.

Accordingly, he won the club with the ace and embarked on a crossruff. After cashing the ace of spades, he led a heart to the queen, ruffed a spade in dummy, cashed the A-K of hearts on which he discarded two spades, ruffed a club, ruffed his last spade, and ruffed still another club.

Nine tricks having been played, South's last four cards consisted of the A-Q-J-9 of trumps. In the face of West's double, it was not difficult for declarer to figure out that West must have the K-20-x-x of trumps left, and that even if West had only three trumps to the king, the contract was still fully under control.

So South led the queen of trumps and West's double suddenly came home to haunt him. He did as well as he could by ducking, but South continued unmercifully with the jack. West won with the king but then had to surrender.

Burbach Claims His Homestead Bill Won't Hit Governmental Subdivisions

Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton said Tuesday his proposed homestead exemption bill would not reduce the revenue of any governmental subdivision or force an increase in local property tax mill levies.

The amended bill, LB932, specifically provides for replacement of local revenue from the state's sales and income tax receipts, Burbach noted.

"Local government, including counties, would be compensated for the actual loss of revenue which they would experience due to enactment of the exemption," the Revenue Committee chairman pointed out.

Burbach responded to Lancaster County Assessor Fritz Meyer's statements this week that enactment of the homestead exemption bill would reduce revenue by about $968,455 and force an increase in the county levy of nearly three mills.

"That is erroneous information," Burbach said.

"In no instance would passage of this bill increase local mill levies or affect local budgets or decrease local revenue."

Revenue from the state's sales and income taxes would finance the homestead exemption, he explained.

LB932 would exempt the first 25% of the actual value of homesteads with an actual value of $1,500 or less, and 20% of the first $4,000 in actual value of homesteads valued at more than $1,500.

Veterans of the Spanish-American War or of World War I would receive an additional 10% exemption on their homes. Totally disabled veterans would receive a 90% exemption.

Los Angeles — California now has 6 million households, or more than one-tenth of all U.S. households.

Okay Expected For Base Housing Purchase

Word out of Washington Tuesday left little doubt that the Lincoln Housing Authority would acquire the old Lincoln Air Force Base housing area.

Walter Moreland, property management and disposal service commissioner with the Washington office of the General Services Administration (GSA), said awarding of the 1,000-unit property would probably be made Thursday by the regional office in Kansas City.

The statement by Moreland stems from the fact that no objection to the sale was raised in the government operations committees of the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives.

The deadline for objections has passed.

Nebraska Sen. Carl Curtis's office confirmed by telephone Tuesday that the Senate Government Operations Committee voiced no objection to the sale.

Rep. Robert Denney said Tuesday he has been assured that GSA will approve the sale.

"I have been in contact with Rep. Jack Brooks (D-Tex.) and he told me that his House Government Operations Committee has confirmed the sale," Denney said.

Brooks is chairman of the committee's governmental activities subcommittee.

Federal regulations require that the sale of government property be submitted to the government committees, which then have a 30-day period to raise objections.

Moreland pointed out that the proposal is sent to the committees after GSA has approved the sale.

Red Meat Output Declines Slightly

Commercial red meat production in Nebraska during April was 255 million pounds, down one per cent from March but up 3% from April of the previous year, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics reported Tuesday.

Production for the first four months totaled 1.4 billion pounds, 5% more than the first four months of 1968.

A total of 349,000 head of cattle were slaughtered in April, up 14% from the 305,000 head slaughtered last year.

The April hog slaughter was 267,000 head, down 27% from last April.

Recent Farm Policy Poked By Mitchell

State Democratic chairman John C. Mitchell said Tuesday recent farm policy "has been to the disadvantage of rural Nebraska," and said Republicans will have to shoulder the blame.

"Nebraska farmers have every right to expect that agriculture should be well represented with this state's all-Republican delegation in Washington during a time when a Republican is in the White House and the secretary of agriculture (Clifford M. Hardin) is from this state," he declared in a prepared statement.

Mitchell said the administration's decision not to resell corn in commercial storage "is a blow to the market, a blow to the farmer and a blow to commercial storers.

"The effect of this decision will be increased corn on the market. Already corn prices are several cents below what they were several weeks ago."

He said Nebraska's Republican senators and congressmen were claiming several years ago that low prices were being caused by the Department of Agriculture's dumping of grain on the market. Yet corn was selling then at $1.30 to $1.32 per bushel, compared with a present prices of $1.12. Prices "will probably drop further" under present policy, he said.

"This policy was followed by more recent decisions to raise the interest on farm storage facility loans from 4% to 6% and limit storage from two year's production to one year's production which will have the effect of adding more corn on the market and further depressing corn prices," Mitchell said.

Stanley Eyed For Interim Ed Position

Cecil Stanley, head of the Division of Vocational Education in the Department of Education, has been approached about being named interim state education commissioner, a competent source revealed Tuesday.

The source informed the Associated Press that two members of the five-member majority of the State Board of Education which last week fired Dr. Floyd Miller as commissioner, proposed the appointment to Stanley.

Stanley had "no comment" on the speculation.

The board will meet Thursday at 1 p.m. to discuss the employment and "to employ an acting commissioner," according to the agenda released by Board President Dr. Allen Burkhardt of Norfolk. The acting or interim commissioner would serve until a permanent successor to Dr. Miller is selected.

Stanley, 60, has been a department staff member since 1941 and became assistant commissioner in charge of vocational education in 1955.

Prior to that, he was with the Lincoln Public Schools system and was in the grocery business in Lincoln and Wahoo.

He received his bachelor's degree from Nebraska Wesleyan University and his master's at Colorado State.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

The other balmy evening we dusted over to the opening in San Francisco of Benihana of Tokyo.

This successful chain of Japanese restaurants is springing up as fast as they can build them. New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Las Vegas, Honolulu.

"Would you like a press kit?" asked the publicity girl. Press kits are prepared information. Photos of chef about to chef. Estimates of how many yards of noodles needed each week. It keeps you from cluttering up the evening taking notes.

I said: "If I take it now, I'll lose it in the shuffle. I'll get it on the way out."

But at sayonara time, I forgot. We are short on facts this sunny morning, but our spirits are high. So to press.

☆ ☆ ☆

Though you wouldn't think a chain of Japanese restaurants would go, Benihana of Tokyo does turnaway business.

It is a simple formula. For their interiors, they buy a Japanese farmhouse. They take it apart. Ship it over. Put it together again. These farmhouses have heavy beam ceilings. The Japanese are choosy about wood.

The tables are family style. About 10 chairs. The center of the table is a sheet of stove metal, fired from below. And a Japanese cook comes to the table and cooks and serves it right there.

Shrimp. Sliced beef. Chopped onions, mushrooms, bean sprouts. A little soy sauce. A sprinkle of salt, sugar, pepper. You get individual dishes of spicy sauces to dip this in. Tea and a bowl of rice.

☆ ☆ ☆

The Benihana of Tokyo places are owned by a stocky Japanese. (Don't call him Shorty. He used to be flyweight wrestling champion of the world.)

The invitation said six o'clock.

I said to the household wren: "They can't mean that. With Daylight Saving time, it's like the middle of the afternoon."

She phoned. She said "The girl doesn't speak much English. But she says dinner starts at six. I confirmed that we'd be there."

☆ ☆ ☆

My office phoned and said: "There's a message on the recorder we can't make out. Too much accent. Somebody named Benny somebody wants you to come to dinner at six."

We phoned back and confirmed again.

I said: "Are you sure that dinner is at six?"

The Japanese girl said: "Ah, yes. Six o'clock I sink so, ne?"

I said: "Blast it, I can't eat dinner then. That's the children's hour." We settled on 6:30. When we arrived they were still pulling the scaffolding off the building.

☆ ☆ ☆

A few early souls were nibbling the hors d'oeuvre. Most people were packed in the bar.

I said to the waitress: "What about the six o'clock dinner?"

She said: "Take your time. We are serving until midnight."

A man came over and sat down. He said: "I supply all the liquor to Benihana in New York. I come to all the openings because they think I am a lucky piece for them."

☆ ☆ ☆

"How many restaurants will there be?" I asked. He said: "They'll have seven under direct management.

"But these places are so popular, I think they will franchise them all over the country. Build the places. Supply the food and know-how. You could open one yourself. Even have food to take out."

So you can look forward to your own little Benihana in your own home.

The guests say: "Who cooked this delicious rice? It's finger-lickin' good."

The hostess smiles. Inscrutably, if she wants to give it a truly Oriental flavor.

Aeronautics Commission To Meet

The State Aeronautics Commission will hear requests for the use of 1971 federal funds and make allocations of 1971 state funds for approved airport development projects at its July 18 meeting in Lincoln, State Airport Engineer Walt Kreuscher reported Tuesday.

To be eligible for funds and in a position to request the approval of a project, the applying community must be listed in the 1968 national airport plan and the proposed work must conform to the airport layout plan.

Indy 500—Blah!

Anyone who sat through the entire Indianapolis 500 last Friday either had to have sat on a seat with gum on it or had previously made arrangements for a ride home after it was over.

If it had been a boxing match on closed circuit television and had that little action, people would have been storming the ticket windows, demanding their money back.

Sports fans now complain about baseball games being too long. We'd suggest the Indy 500 is too long, by about 499 miles.

When a Little League baseball game gets as one-sided as this year's 500 was, they call it off, using something called the 10-run rule. The Indy 500 should be so far-sighted.

The most suspenseful moment in this year's 500 was wondering if son Mike would find his way back from the popcorn stand.

The biggest contribution the Indy 500 makes to society is that it keeps 300,000 potential picnickers out of the parks on Memorial Day. This past Memorial Day, there was more action in the parks than at the Indianapolis Speedway.

Ants More Exciting

Watching ants crawl over a potato salad offers more excitement than most Indy 500s.

Mario Andretti's victory was so lop-sided that he could have pedaled the last 10 laps and still won by five miles.

When a football contest becomes that one-sided, the fans head for home to get the ice out of the freezer and get the dip ready for the chips.

When the Indy 500 becomes that one-sided, the fans sit around hoping for a piston to pop, a bearing to quit or a gas line to split.

It's not a test of human skills; it's strictly a test of machinery and nothing's more prone to error than a machine, not even a human.

If you don't believe that, ask anyone who owns a garbage disposal, an automatic washer, or dryer or even an automobile.

Indianapolis 500 victories aren't won; they're inherited.

Credit In Wrong Place

All the credit in auto racing goes in the wrong place. It's the mechanics and car builders who should get the kisses from the queen.

There's not 28 laps difference between Mario Andretti and A. J. Foyt as drivers. But that's about what the final results show.

To put things in perspective, the mechanical crew ought to get the $200,000 for Andretti's victory and Mario should get 10 cents a mile, just like the rest of us who drive for business.

Some year, none of the cars are going to make it through the 500 miles and the pace car will be declared the winner.

Some folks obviously get a big kick out of watching one car go from here to Seward ahead of another, watching drivers make 800 left hand turns, watching a battle of machines rather than humans.

Me, I'll try watering my lawn next Memorial Day. It's got to offer more excitement.

Prince Looking Better In Workouts

New York (AP) — Majestic Prince galloped a mile and a half at Belmont Park Tuesday morning and trainer Johnny Longden said the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner "is looking better and better every day."

Longden, who had been reluctant to enter Majestic Prince in the gruelling 1½-mile Belmont Stakes Saturday because he looked tired and had lost weight, said "He's been picking up some of that weight he lost — the dapples are showing."

The unbeaten, big red 3-year-old colt had his last big workout when he went 1⅛ miles with Longden up in 1:51 4-5 at dawn Sunday.

Majestic Prince, aiming for the first Triple Crown sweep since 1948, will have another gallop Wednesday and then will blow out Thursday.

An early line had Majestic Prince, winner of all nine of his starts, the 6-5 favorite in a field of six. Arts and Letters, a close second in the Derby and Preakness and winner of the Metropolitan mile over older horses Friday, was 8-5. Dike, third by three-quarters of a length in the Derby and a non-starter in the Preakness, was 2-1.

Rooney's Shield and Distray were listed at 20-1 and Prime Fool at 30-1. Rooney's Shield and Distray are not definite starters. If they withdraw the field could be the smallest Belmont since Count Fleet won the three-horse race in 1943.

Arts and Letters also galloped Tuesday while Dike finished fast in an excellent seven-furlong workout in 1:23 4-5.

"He's coming up to the race very well," said trainer Elliott Burch after Arts and Letters' gallop. The colt probably will blow out Friday.

Dike, winner of the Gotham and Wood before the Derby, was clocked in 12 2-5, 24 1-5, 36 1-5, 48 flat, 59 4-5, 1:11 3-5 and 1:23 4-5.

"I liked the way he finished," said trainer Lucien Laurin. "His last two workouts have been just what I wanted. He'll blow out a quarter-mile through the stretch Friday and I expect him to be at his best for the Belmont."

ARNIE QUALIFIES FOR OPEN

Putter Gives Palmer 138 At Youghiogheny

. . . 4,500 WATCH LINKS ACTION

McKeesport, Pa. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, who helped build the pro golf tour into a $6 million enterprise easily qualified for the National Open golf championship Tuesday and commented afterward: "I guess there's a little spark in the old man yet."

The Latrobe, Pa., millionaire, who won the Open in 1960, lost three times in playoffs and finished second on another occasion fired a 70-68—138 in two rounds over the Youghiogheny Country Club course.

The U.S. Golf Association rule exempts only the last five champions, plus others in various categories such as top finishers in the last Open and leading money winners on the tour.

Palmer, who has been having his problems this season, failed to qualify as one of the leading money winners.

However, his superb performance under tremendous pressure Tuesday makes him a definiite threat for the title to be defended by Lee Trevino at Houston.

"I putted better than I have in recent tournaments," Palmer said. "I didn't putt outstandingly well, but I knocked in some four and six-footers which I've been accustomed to missing and got in a couple of long ones."

Palmer sank a 20-footer on the second hole of the morning round for his first birdie and rammed in a 25-footer for an eagle on the 455-yard par-5 eighth in the afternoon.

He had four birdies, an eagle and only one bogey — three putting the sixth on the morning round.

The qualifying test was staged in cold, blustery weather over the Indian-named course, which means "a river running upstream."

A crowd of 4,500 poured in for the qualifying rounds over an extremely hilly and difficult layout, which measures 6,200 yards and plays to a par 36-36—72.

Most of the fans went the full route with their Arnie, cheering every dramatic shot and moaning with every putt he missed.

The 39-year-old four-time Masters winners gave his army one of its old-time thrills when on the 36th hole of the long day he hit an iron to the final green. It struck the flag stick on the fly and bounded about 25 yards past.

"That's Arnie of old," a spectator was heard to say.

"We will have to wait a couple of weeks to find out about that," Palmer said later.

Among the other 72 who qualified around the country were Deane Beman, Al Besselink, Lee Elder and Bob Rosburg.

The first three all made it at Bethesda Country Club in Washington, D.C. Beman, former U.S. amateur champion, led the qualifiers there with a 72-69—141,. while Besselink came in at 142 and Elder, a touring pro, at 145.

Rosburg qualified in St. Louis, posting a 140, one strike behind the leading qualifier, Bob Stone.

Among those not making it at St. Louis was Bob Goalby, the 1968 Masters' champion. Goalby bogeyed the final hole of the 36-hole day and finished with 142, one stroke away from the magic circle.

Ed Furgol, who won the Open 15 years ago, also failed to make it, finishing with 158 in Purchase, N.Y., 10 strokes behind the last qualifier. Dudley Wysong also missed at Purchase.

At Napa, Calif., Scotty McBeath tied the record for the south course at Silverado Country Club. His 67 equaled the score Bruce Devlin posted there earlier this year in the Kaiser Open. E. Harvie Ward, former two-time U.S. Amateur champ, failed to qualify there.

Others who won't play in the June 12-15 classic include Tommy Bolt, the 1958 Open champ, and Charlie Sifford, top Negro player among the pros. Both were hampered by cold weather in Chicago and withdrew after the first 18 holes.

Bobby Cole of South Africa was the top qualifier from the Chicago area, shooting a 3-under par 68-71 — 139, one stroke better than Jim Colbert of Overland Park, Kan.

NBC, Gerry's Legion Winners

NBC (East High), got off to a good start in its first time at bat, as Jeff Gade blasted a 340-foot homer following walks to Kevin Gemmell and Ron Stephenson.

The Bankers added two insurance runs in the third frame when Scott Levey walked with the bases loaded, scoring Jeff Patterson, and Kent Mahoney knocked in Stephenson with a sacrifice fly. Stephenson had a perfect night at the plate with two singles and a walk.

Dennis Butler had two of Witt's four hits off winning hurler Barry Blue, including an RBI single in the top of the first to give the Pius X-based team a short-lived 1-0 lead.

In the nightcap, Gerry's broke a 1-1 tie with two runs in the fifth inning after two previous double plays had gotten Aamco out of trouble. Both teams had scored their first runs on errors.

In the fifth, Rick Grell reached on an error and scored on Blaine Davis' triple. Dennis Kinnan then squeezed Davis home.

Jay Weyers of Gerry's (Lincoln High) struck out nine and limited Aamco's to five hits. He fanned the next two men after Tom Novak hit a one-out triple in the second for Aamco (Northeast).

Maury Wills Announces Intentions Of Retiring

. . . HITTING .198 FOR 43 GAMES

Montreal (AP) — Maury Wills, one of the modern day greats of baseball, announced Tuesday his intention to retire.

Jim Fanning, general manager of the Montreal Expos, said Wills asked to be placed on the National League's voluntary retired list.

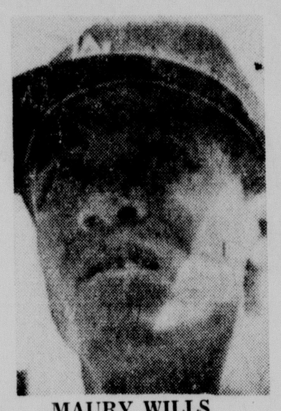
He was replaced by Bobby Wine at shortstop in Tuesday night's game against San Francisco.

Fanning said Wills 36, asked for a meeting with him earlier in the day but the Montreal general manager was tied up most of the day with other business.

When Fanning did get a few minutes, he went to his office and found a "simple, typewritten letter" requesting that Wills be placed on the voluntary retired list.

Fanning said he would submit Wills' letter to the baseball commissioner's office Wednesday.

Wills was drafted from Pittsburgh by the Expos in the expansion draft last Oct. 14.



MAURY WILLS

In a brief statement, Fanning said:

"Tonight, Maury Wills asked for and submitted a letter requesting voluntary status. We had a nice visit and there is no doubt in my mind that he is sincere. We hate to lose him but are respecting his wishes."

Wills had a .198 batting average in 43 games with the Expos this year. But coming into this season, his 11th in the major leagues, Wills had a lifetime batting average of .287 with the Dodgers and Pirates.

He set a modern major league record in 1962 when he stole 104 bases. He had 12 stolen bases in 17 attempts this year.

Mulvaney, a junior, will enter in the discus, the event which he holds the Peru record of 169'8".

Sophomore distance ace Weyers will enter the six-mile. He holds the school record in the event with a 30:03.5.

NY Mets Surpass .500 Mark First Time Ever

. . . MONTREAL LOSES 17TH STRAIGHT

By Associated Press

Ed Kranepool blasted a pair of home runs behind the fine pitching of Tom Seaver, leading the streaking New York Mets to their sixth straight victory, a 5-2 triumph over the Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday night.

The victory moved the Mets one game over .500 — the first time in their eight-year history they have passed baseball's break-even mark after the first week in the season. It also jumped them one percentage point ahead of Pittsburgh into second place in the East Division.

Willie McCovey knocked in three runs with a double and his 17th homer and Willie Mays hit his 593rd career homer as San Francisco crushed Montreal 9-3. It was the Expos' 17th consecutive defeat, equaling the major league record for expansion teams set by the New York Mets in 1962.

Vada Pinson and Joe Torre each drove in two runs and Steve Carlton hurled a five-hitter as the St. Louis Cardinals withstood homers by Orlando Cepeda and Hank Aaron for a 5-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Wally Bunker hurled his first complete game victory since last August and Joe Foy and Lou Piniella struck key blows in a four-run Kansas City rally as the Royals snapped a six-game losing streak with a 5-3 triumph over Washington.

Dave Boswell and Ron Perranoski stopped New York on four hits and Harmon Killebrew and Tony Oliva cracked home runs as the Minnesota Twins blanked the Yankees 4-0.

Carl Yastrzemski drove in four runs with a homer, single and triple and Reggie Smith and Rico Petrocelli contributed solo homers in leading Boston to an 8-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Alex Johnson and Tony Perez lined run-scoring singles with two out in the seventh inning, sparking the Cincinnati Reds to a 7-3 victory over Pittsburgh, their 10th triumph in the last 11 games.

Al Ferrara's two-run double and a two-run homer by Ollie Brown gave San Diego an early lead and the Padres held on to beat Philadelphia 6-5 for their fifth straight victory.

Randy Hundley's run-producing single in the sixth inning broke a tie and carried the Chicago Cubs to their fifth consecutive victory, 4-2 over the Houston Astros.

Hundley's single scored Ron Santo, who had doubled, and snapped a 2-2 deadlock. Don Young's double added another run in the frame.

In late games Tuesday night, Baltimore was at Oakland, Cleveland at Seattle and Detroit at California in the American League.

Cincy Bengals Ink KU Gridder

Cincinnati (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals of the American Football League Monday signed John Jackson from the University of Kansas and Winston Phillips from Tulsa University.

Jackson, 5-foot-10 and 173 pounds, was a starting wingback for Kansas' Orange Bowl team. Bengals' coach Paul Brown said, however, Jackson, who has run the 100-yard dash in 9.5 and the 220 in 21.2, will be tried in the defensive secondary.

No NFL Solutions Yet, But Choices Pared To 16

New York (AP) — The National Football League failed to settle the problem of realigning 13 teams into a National Conference for 1970 Tuesday after 31½ hours of meetings.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle said it was very doubtful that the clubs would be able to reach the required unanimous agreement this week on a 5-4-4 division setup. However, attempts will be made during and after the joint meetings with the American Football League that open today.

"We tried to reduce 16 combinations to nine that would be logical enough to let us draw by lot," said Rozelle. "But we were unable to reach accord.

"Maybe the best bet is for someone to get ulcers," Rozelle added with a grin, referring to Art Modell, Cleveland owner, who was in a hospital with ulcers when he agreed to move the Browns into the American Conference with Baltimore, Pittsburgh and the 10 AFL teams at the meetings last month.

The owners met for 22 hours last month, 3½ hours Monday and six more hours Tuesday without reaching agreement. All the clubs want to preserve traditional rivalries, play in big parks in warm climates and also compete in a division with a chance to win.

Rozelle said there was no great urgency for a decision at this time as the basic structure of the merged leagues had been determined last month and no 1970 schedules would be drawn up until December. He said television was not a problem.

Rozelle said the owners had some 11-2 votes and also a 12-1 but would not break it down to definite alignments. He said the hangup was in two of the three divisions.

New York Philadelphia, Washington, St. Louis and Dallas would be happy to be together in one division. Los Angeles and San Francisco would be in another and Green Bay, Chicago and Detroit in another. That would leave the placing of Minnesota, Atlanta and New Orleans as problems.

Rozelle said New Orleans' position was that it did not care which division it would be in as long as it had Atlanta or Dallas. Atlanta wanted either New Orleans or Washington in its division.

AA Expansion Being Sought

New York (AP) — A joint committee on minor league realignment recommended Tuesday that the American Association be expanded from six teams to eight teams next year.

Adoption of the recommendation of the major-minor league committee would fulfill a commitment made at the winter meetings last December by the majors that each of the 24 teams would support a club in Triple A classification by 1970.

The six teams in the American Association now are Denver, Omaha, Iowa, Tulsa, Oklahoma City and Indianapolis. Other Triple A minor leagues are the International and the Pacific Coast.

Bob Howsam, general manager of the Cincinnati Reds and chairman of the realignment committee, said specific cities had been suggested as additions to the American Association, but he declined to identify them.

Bankers, KOLN Softball Winners

Citizens' State Bank rode to a 4-0 win over The Tack Room on the strength of Leon Jurgens' bat in the opener of a Lincoln AAA city softball league twinbill Tuesday night.

Jurgens blasted a two-run homer as Citizens' scored three times in the first, then tripled and scored the final tally for the Bankers in the sixth. John Laird hurled a two-hit shutout for the victory.

In the nightcap, KOLN-TV scored five runs before Dick Flynn's Motor City ever came to bat and went on to pound the motormen, 6-1, on Dick Ude's five-hitter.

National Bank of Commerce stopped Ken Witt's, 5-1, and Gerry's Sports took a 4-1 decision over Aamco Transmission in the Lincoln American Legion baseball openers at Sherman Field Tuesday night.

It's Wonderful World For Golfer Dan Sikes

San Francisco (AP) — Dan Sikes, the golfing lawyer from Jacksonville, Fla., calmly knocked in a 30-foot tie breaking putt Tuesday on the 16th hole and went on to beat Roberto De Vicenzo by two strokes and win the $20,000 first prize in television's Wonderful World of Golf.

The match was taped for showing next year on the 6,669 yard Olympic Club course. Sikes shot a one-under-par 70 to De Vicenzo's one-over 72.

Kloepper Competing

Phil Kloepper of Hastings, the gold medal winner in the discus at the recent state high school track championships, has accepted an invitation to compete in the sixth annual Midwest Classic high school meet in Mexico, Mo., Saturday.

Kloepper, who also won the Class A shot put, will enter the meet with the second best discus effort. His gold medal toss of 176-0 is topped only by a 178-1 effort by Steve Birger of Collinsville, Ill.

Kloepper is bested by five other entries in the shot put. His season's top put of 56-4½ is nearly six feet less than the meet's top competitor, Greg Buys of Kennett, Mo., with a heave of 62-2.

The only one likely to catch Buys is Illinois champion Tom Holt of Sauk Village, who has a 59-10 to his credit this spring.

More than 75 state champions from across the nation have accepted invitations to the meet. Barring late entries, however, Kloepper is the only Nebraska titleholder planning to enter.

Cornhusker KC Dogs Triumph

The Cornhusker Kennel Club of Lincoln reports that four dogs owned by club members won honors at a dog show in Grand Island Sunday.

The winners were a Dachshund owned by Erich Hartmann, Best of Breed; a Chihuahua owned by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McLane, Best of Breed; a pug owned by Mr. and Mrs. Leo Kaufmann, Reserve Winner; and a German shepherd owned by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Peterson, first in American Bred Class.

Jr. Olympic Qualifying Goes Today

Lincoln's district Junior Olympics qualifying meet at Southeast H.S. Wednesday will draw over 370 entries.

Meet director Roy Churchill indicates that the nine and under, 10-11 and 12-13 divisions will compete beginning at 8:30 a.m.

The afternoon session at 1:30 p.m. features competition in the 14-15 and 16-17 age groups.

Winners and runnersup in the individual events Wednesday will advance to the state finals in Omaha June 14.

Expos Deal Grant To St. Louis Club

Montreal (AP) — The Montreal Expos of the National League acquired right-handed pitcher Gary Waslewski Tuesday from St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for veteran hurler Jim "Mudcat" Grant.

Waslewski is expected to join the Expos here today. He went to the Cardinals organization from the Boston Red Sox Dec. 3 in exchange for infielder Dick Schofield.

Waslewski, 0-2, pitched 20 2-3 innings for the Cardinals, giving up 19 hits and nine earned runs for a 3.86 earned run average.

Grant, 33, also a right-hander, was the Expos' 18th draft choice, coming from the Los Angeles Dodgers in last October's National League expansion.

He started 10 games for the Expos, winning one and losing six and compiling an earned run average of 4.78.

Williams-Short 'Marriage' Expected To Last Long

Kansas City (AP) — The wedding of Ted Williams and Bob Short may have shocked baseball followers, but both say the honeymoon is far from over and the love affair may go on for a long time.

Williams, last of the .400 hitters and a man who held himself aloof from any return to baseball for eight years since his retirement in 1960, was lured from his seemingly idyllic perch in baseball's Hall of Fame by Short after he purchased the Washington Senators last winter.

"Yes, I think you could call it an ideal marriage," said Short, who is here for the Senators' three-game series with the Kansas City Royals.

"The honeymoon isn't over, and we hope it goes on for a long time," added the Minneapolis trucking and hotel executive.

"I'm married to him, and he's married to me," is the way Williams put it.

Neither has lost any enthusiasm for his new role — Short as a baseball owner nearly a decade after he sold the Minneapolis Lakers and got out of professional basketball, and Williams as a manager.

"Sure I missed being out of sports," Short said. "When I sold the Lakers, I tried to get into baseball. I think that had either Washington or Detroit been for sale then, I could have gotten in for about what I got out of basketball. Both of those clubs were in trouble then.

"There's no doubt in my mind that I've preferred baseball all along. I think when you were a kid and thought of major league sports you thought of baseball first — not football or basketball."

Short is traveling with the Senators on their first swing around the American League. He has missed only their trip to Seattle thus far.

"I figure I have to do it the first time around in order to know what I'm doing," he said.

Williams says he's had occasional thoughts about whether he did the right thing in letting Short talk him into managing.

"They all ask me what I'd be doing if I wasn't doing this," the former Boston Red Sox great said. "I say I'd be up at dawn, I'd have some rum collinses and I'd be out looking for tarpon or marlin or something.

"That's when we've lost a few.

"Then I see Short and I think, "Thank you for this wonderful opportunity."

"I never thought I'd do it (manage). Then I weakened a little and told him okay. I don't regret it.

"I have an understanding here. If I can't do it, if I can't stand it, I can pack it in and nobody will be hurt. But I feel I can still do little things for him if I'm not managing."

"He's just been fantastic," Short said. "He's got no peer in this business. And he loves it. He's got the kids enthused and playing well.

"I'm completely satisfied. He's got my vote of confidence anytime he wants it."

Plan To Save Old Hospital Dead

Lincoln General Hospital will take bids on razing only part of the old hospital building, and Lancaster County commissioners plan to talk to St. Elizabeth Hospital officials about buying the grounds and buildings of that facility when the new St. Elizabeth opens.

These latest developments in determining the future use of the old Lincoln General Hospital were outlined Tuesday as County Commissioner William Grossman announced that the Kingery Construction Co. plan for a joint office building-nursing home at the old Lincoln General site was "dead."

The still unnamed client that had considered renting part of the building while the county used the other half as a care home "decided to go elsewhere," Grossman told a special meeting of the Lincoln General Hospital board.

Kingery Proposal

The Kingery Co. had proposed remodeling the entire building at a cost of $400,000, leasing half of the facility to the county at no cost for a care home and leasing the other half to a private firm "from outside of Lincoln" at the rate of $150,000 per year. The firm would have employed 300-350 persons, according to Grossman.

Kingery had indicated that the annual rental cost would be about $155,000, based on $90,000 for five years to recover the remodeling investment, $25,000 for utilities and $40,000 for maintenance, Grossman said.

Approximately $5,000 would have had to have been made up by the county each year, in addition to whatever rent the hospital board would charge the county for use of the building, he said.

Hospital Needs Ground

Lincoln General Board President J. Herbert Hopkins has contended that the hospital needs the ground on which the old building stands for parking or else needs to utilize the building to generate funds to purchase parking space elsewhere.

Grossman said that it might be cheaper for the taxpayers if the county could purchase St. Elizabeth Hospital rather than to pay the suggested rental of $60,000 to the hospital board.

He told the Lincoln General board members that the county will arrange a meeting with St. Elizabeth officials and has asked to be considered as a possible purchaser.

United Convalescent Homes, Inc., of Los Angeles, Calif., is reportedly near closing the agreement with St. Elizabeth to purchase the old facility.

Specifications

Hopkins said that Lincoln General would ask that specifications for demolishing the old building be written with an alternate of razing only the older eastern portion in the event that the county would make a definite proposal for remodeling the west end as a 140-bed care home.

Grossman said Tuesday that he has estimated costs of remodeling the west portion, including provision for kitchen facilities, at $250,000.

He said the kitchen probably would be located in the County Convalescent Hospital building since Lincoln General officials have indicated they could not provide food service for any additional floors added to the unit. Lincoln General currently provides the food service in the unit.

Lincoln General board member Don Shurtleff pointed out that the hospital would realize additional parking space even from partial demolition of the old building if the city would be willing to waive some setback requirements.

Hospital Administrator Robert Brungard noted that the hospital would be able to have more parking now if the city had not refused to waive setback requirements when the new building was constructed.

Mid-America To Buy UP Plot

Arrangements for the purchase of the largest plot of ground to be bought so far in the Union Pacific industrial park were announced Tuesday by the president of Mid-America Webpress, Inc.

A subsidiary of the Republic Corporation of Los Angeles, Mid-America plans to acquire more than half a million square feet of land in the park, said President Roger Dickeson.

Officials of the Republic Corporation said the firm selected the expansion site because it placed the company in the advantageous position of "being caught in a noose between the Interstate, the Union Pacific Railroad tracks and the airport."

Next Growth Area

Dickeson noted that Lincoln is also expected to become a prime distribution area because it is looked upon as the "next great growth area in the country."

From $3.5 to $4 million will be invested in the land, plant and printing equipment which will initially occupy 100,000 square feet.

Dickeson said planned second and third additions would probably triple the area occupied by the plant as markets and sales are expanded.

The initial investment will include a substantial acquisition of new press equipment designed to make the Lincoln plant one of the most modern web offset printing operations in the world for the publication of magazines and catalogues, officials said.

No Problem Seen

Although final contracts for the land purchase are still subject to approval of the Union Pacific Board of Directors, UP land official Phil Schmidt said he could not conceive of any difficulty in completing the transaction.

Dickeson said preliminary design of the plant will begin this month. It will be patterned after Republic Corporation's lithographic arts facility in Los Angeles, he said.

Mid-America began as a result of a split into publishing and printing businesses by the Nebraska Farmer in 1968. Earlier this year the printing company was purchased by the Republic Corporation.

The company's present work force of 130 persons will increase as the new plant becomes operational and sales increase, said Dickeson.

Brezhnev Doctrine Boils Down To 'Heads I Win, Tails You Lose'

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

Washington (AP) — Moscow's so-called Brezhnev doctrine of "limited sovereignty," advanced to justify the invasion of Czechoslovakia, is an ominous portent for Russia's allies and foes alike, a U.S. Senate study says.

The study views the doctrine as a development with chilling implications.

It said Czechoslovakia demonstrated what Russian power can accomplish overnight and it indicated that such nuclear-supported might is ready for "employment on other tasks." It said the West cannot be complacent that "good sense will necessarily prevail in the decisions and actions of the Soviet Politburo."

On Eve Of Summit

The study was prepared by the Senate subcommittee on national security and international operations, under the chairmanship of Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash. He released it Tuesday night on the eve of the international Communist conference in Moscow, where the doctrine will raise complex problems.

It is regarded as having done heavy damage to political aims of Communist parties elsewhere, particularly in Western Europe.

Moscow denies there is any such doctrine. But Pravda stated it clearly last September. In November, party chief Leonid Brezhnev affirmed it. As Pravda put it, Communist governments and parties cannot make any decision which damages "socialism" at home or elsewhere. Moscow evidently reserves to itself the right to determine when "socialism" is endangered.

Invasion Justification

The Kremlin decided last summer that a reform movement in Communist-ruled Czechoslovakia imperiled party authority and set a dangerous example. Soviet and other Warsaw Pact troops invaded and throttled the program. Moscow has been applying obvious pressure on the current Czechoslovak party leadership to help the Russians justify the action at the Moscow conference.

In releasing the document, Jackson described the Brezhnev doctrine as "vintage Russian power politics."

"However sanguine anyone may have been about Soviet policy," the study says, "the military assault on Czechoslovakia was a sobering experience . . . The Brezhnev doctrine, in effect, asserts that among Communist countries treaty obligations and pledges will be dismissed as mere legal abstractions whenever the Soviet Union finds them in conflict with the 'class' laws of social development and that it is Russia's right to intervene unilaterally by arms in 'any Socialist country.'

"This specter now haunts the Communist movement, and it haunts as well the rest of Europe and the free world. How far does the supposed right of Soviet intervention stretch? Other Communist countries and parties and everyone else must now reckon with the Brezhnev doctrine in their assessments of Soviet intentions. And they must reckon with it at a time when Soviet military power is expanding and when Soviet capacity to exert its power for effective intervention is increasing."

The study calls the doctrine a textbook case of "heads I win, tails you lose," as stated by the Kremlin.

"The similarities between Moscow's forcible methods and Nazi tactics and deeds are now fully visible to the peoples of the Warsaw Pact countries and to the West European Communist parties whose interests the Soviet leadership has deliberately disregarded," it says.

"If anyone had any doubt about the importance of Moscow's modern weaponry in implementing its political purposes, the tragedy of Czechoslovakia should dispel the doubt.

"In military terms, the Soviet trust into Czechoslovakia proved what they can do overnight — when unopposed. The Soviet capability that was exercised so impressively in Czechoslovakia — under the protection of the powerful and expanding Russian nuclear-missile forces — is ready for employment on other tasks."

Stock Mart Keeps Declining Pattern

New York (AP) — The stock market stuck to its now familiar declining pattern Tuesday. Trading was fairly active.

The market has been sliding since the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials reached its 1969 high of 968.85 May 14. This average took a loss of 2.39 Tuesday, closing at 930.78.

Analysts said the two persistent main aggravations tight money and lack of progress toward ending the Vietnam war — continued to make investors cautious.

The market closed at its lowest level of the session after a brief effort at recovery around mid-day. The Associated Press 60-stock average fell .9 to 331.4 with industrials off 1.8, rails off .3 and utilities off .4.

Among the 1,597 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange 848 declined and 477 advanced.

Volume of 11.19 million shares compared with 9.18 million Monday.

The New York exchange held up opening of trading in Standard Oil of Ohio throughout the session because of an influx of orders following announcement of the company's plan to merge with British Petroleum.

The American Stock Exchange delayed opening of trading in British Petroleum for the same reason. When the issue opened on a block of 178,500 shares it was off ½ at 20¾. It closed at 20⅛, off 1⅛, on total volume of 470,200 shares.

Reading & Bates was the most active stock on the Big Board, declining 1¾ to 45½ on 409,900 shares. The issue had soared 17⅝ Mondayefter announcing acquisition of two companies with interests in Indonesian oil fields.

Oils again were the most actively traded group but their recent strength became spotty. Ashland advanced 2¾ to 51⅞ and Atlantic Richfield gained ⅝ at 129¼ but Pacific Petroleums declined 2⅜ to 39⅞ and Livingston was ff ¾ at 12⅛.

Among big blockstraded on the New York exchange were 83,400 shares of Hilton Hotels, off 1⅞ at 63¾; 56,300 shares of Miehle-Goss-Dexter, off ¼ at 29⅞, and 50,000 shares of Sperry Rand, off ⅜ at 52¼.

Electronics, tobaccos, building materials and drugs were generally lower. Steels, rubbers and aircrafts were mostly higher.

Golds, which have been strong recently, weakened under pressure of speculative selling in Europe. Among them, American South African declined ⅝ to 51⅞.

Prices declined on the American Exchange. The exchange index dropped 16 cents to $30.79. Volume of 7.42 million shares wasup from 4.76 million Monday.

Stock Prices Reflect Doubt About Pause In Inflation

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

MERRYLE RUKEYSER
Long Term Process

The comparative strength of stock prices, despite the stiff money crunch, reflects skepticism as to whether any halt in the inflationary process will be more than a temporary interruption of a long term economic process.

Recognizing the political and pressure group factors making for inflation, Edgar Lawrence Smith some 41 years ago in his little volume entitled "Common Stocks as A Long Term Investment" changed the investment procedures of individual and institutional investors. He demonstrated statistically that over long periods stocks of healthy and growing companies gave investors a larger share of affluence than high grade bonds.

Herbert C. Hoover, in his 1928 campaign, accepting the Smith premise, forecast "two chickens in every pot and two cars in every garage." As a short term prediction, the observation seemed ridiculous when the bottom fell out of stock prices in the panic of October 1929, but, as depression circumstances passed, long term growth and the inflationary pressures supported the thesis.

Tempting Device

Inflation enables makers of irredeemable political promises to appear to be redeeming their pledges. They do so at the expense of those with fixed dollar savings in the form of thrift deposits, annuity contracts, ownership of mortgages, and insurance policies. Inflation is a tempting device for giving racketeers in office the means of publicizing governmental "benefits" while concealing the costs. Inflation as a hidden form of taxation places a concealed capital levy on the savings of thrifty persons with claims on fixed dollars.

Inflation is also initiated when fiat power conferred by governmental statutes on private associations called labor unions is used to force increases in labor payments more rapidly than improvement in productivity per the man-tool hour occurs.

Inflation is associated with political and pressure group ballyhoo, and through the ages has tended to diminish the buying power of a given unit of currency.

Best Hedge

Readers frequently write this column to ask what is the best hedge against inflation. Perhaps the scientific answer would be to develop an intelligent electorate, with would demand prudent handling of the nation's fiscal and monetary problems.

Certainly, while debt commitments (high grade bonds) are obviously hurt by inflation, it does not follow that all common stocks are necessarily helped. Inflation tends to raise costs, and, if selling prices cannot be advanced rapidly, there is deterioration in profit results. Companies with a relatively low ratio of labor costs to gross income, resulting from automation or other factors, tend to be in a superior position.

Of course, results depend on selectivity and timing, and, in the nature of things, there is always a difference of opinion at the market place. If there were unanimity of thinking, there would be a contraction of the volume in stock markets which necessarily must attract both buyers and sellers.

One exerienced financial analyst, after studying the situation, came up with a list of common stock inflation hedges, which included, among others: Alcan Aluminum, Alcoa, American Metal Climax, Anaconda, Callahan Mining, Castle & Cooke, Eastman Kodak, Getty Oil, Heckla, Mobil Oil, National Cash Register, Newmont Mining, Revlon, Texaco, Weyerhaeuser Lumber, and Xerox.

This illustrative list is something for other qualified analysts to shoot at and criticize. Investment should be related to the peculiar position and goals of the individual. Investment by formula is unlikely to be useful.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with stamped self addressed envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column. Others, to the extent time permits, will be handled by mail.)

Health Board Rejects Move To Hire Full-Time Dentist

The Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Board Tuesday rejected a move to hire a full-time dentist and assistant, but approved forwarding to the County Welfare Board a recommendation for updating the dental clinic.

During the meeting, Dr. E. L. Lampshire, who led the drive for the personnel changes, and other members of the board exchanged heated remarks concerning the board's acceptance of the recommendations made in a report from the Lincoln District Dental Association.

Sparking the disagreement was a recommendation to do away with "screening" patients before referring them to Lincoln denitsts.

Cost 'Doubled'

Lampshire maintained that the cost of the screening was doubled since any dentist was sure to make his own examination before treating the patient. He added that a dentist must examine a patient before referring him for treatment under county funds.

Disagreeing with Lampshire, Board Member Rollin Bailey asserted that screening patients was necessary to prevent expenses that are not actually necessary to the treatment of the patient.

Since the county welfare must approve any dentist bill over $40 and demands a written report on any dental work completed over $200, the preventive costs were what he termed "worth it."

Prepared Statement

In a prepared statement made to the members of the board, Dr. G. R. Underwood, director of the health department, said he was forced to recommend "that no personnel change be made at present, and that a serious effort be made to develop a close collaboration of the dental division with the University of Nebraska Dental College."

Dr. Underwood said the cost of hiring a full-time dentist could be off-set if the dental college could use welfare patients for their work instead of "the cream of the crop."

The present yearly operating budget for the dental clinic is approximately $17,000, of which $6,600 is granted by federal and state agencies. The rest is made up by the city and county.

The total number of dental patients seen from July 1, 1968 to May 1, 1969 totaled 1,581 with 946 of the patients referred to dentists outside the clinic.

Present Staff

The present staff of the clinic consists of two part-time dentists with an additional dentist hired for one full day a week during the summer months. A full-time dental assistant is also employed to assist the dentists.

"With this type of a situation, we actually have someone doing the full-time work needed from the dental clinic at much less cost," Dr. Underwood said.

However, Dr. Underwood added that the equipment in the dental clinic needs to be replaced and suggested that the old equipment be exchanged for new during the upcoming fiscal year.

In other business, City Councilman Thomas E. Allman was replaced on the board by Councilman Richard Hartsock.

The transformers switched off, and the resulting sudden overload on the generators at 8th and K caused the breakdown, officials said.

Macy Pow-Pow Aug. 27-Sept. 1, Council Reveals

Macy — The Omaha Indian Tribe's annual pow-wow will be held this year Aug. 27 through Sept. 1, according to an announcement by Tribal Council chairman Edward Cline.

The 102nd annual pow-wow will be attended this year by members of all the "cognate" tribes of the Omahas — the Osage, Quapaw, Ponca and Kaw or Kansas.

The five tribes long ago were a single tribe and their languages are similar. Only the Omaha still occupy their former homeland in Nebraska; the other four tribes now are located in Oklahoma.

Cline said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy has been invited to be special guest speaker for the pow-wow.

The annual fall celebration, which features Indian dancing sessions afternoon and evening each, will be held at the tribe's pow-wow grounds at Macy.

Ex-Lincolnite Gets 1st VA Heart Graft

Palo Alto, Calif. (AP) — A retired carpenter has undergone the first heart transplant performed in a Veterans Administration hospital, it was reported Tuesday.

Donald H. Hallbeck, 54, of Stockton, Calif., received the heart of a Vietnam war veteran Monday night in a four-hour operation. Officials said he was making "encouraging progress."

The surgery was performed by a team headed by Dr. William W. Angel, chief of cardiac surgery at the VA hospital here.

The heart donor was a 20-year-old man killed in a traffic accident. His name was withheld.

Hendricks said that Hallbeck, a native of Lincoln, Neb., had been living in Palo Alto for several weeks waiting for a donor.

His fiancee, Shawnee Pavlik of East Palo Alto, said they had planned to marry in Nevada Tuesday. This was canceled when the prospects of a donor developed.

She also said they tried to marry at the hospital Monday before the operation, but doctors thought it would be too great a strain.

Fourteen heart transplants have been performed at nearby Stanford University Hospital.

City Hall OK'd For Use In Probation Program

The doors of the old City Hall will open again Monday.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf said Tuesday he has given final clearance to Robert Keller, municipal probation officer for using part of the old City Hall building as a probation office.

Keller, who has a small office now in the new County-City Building, said he plans to open the office in the old City Hall Monday.

On Second Floor

The probation office will be on the second floor and will consist of the former City Council chamber, mayor's office, council secretary's office and the finance director's office.

"Plans to use the water and light department (office) on first floor were scrapped after a tour was made of the facilities at the City Hall building," Keller said.

He remarked that using the first floor space would necessitate some remodeling costs. No such expenditures are expected in the use of the second floor offices.

Inventory

The probation officer, along with Municipal Court Judge Thomas McManus and Donald Cullen, clerk of the municipal court, conducted an inventory in the old building Tuesday to determine what office furniture could be moved into the new office.

"Plans are to clean up the office area Wednesday and to have phones installed sometime this week in preparation for Monday's opening," Keller said.

He said that James Allen, part-time probation officer and coordinator of the volunteer counselor program, will have his office in the old City Hall.

Keller said he would keep his present office in the new building for use in presentence investigtaion work and court contacts.

To Be 'Hub'

He said the offices in the old building will become "the hub for counseling activities of the probation department." He noted that the department has some 60 volunteer counselors assigned to probationers.

There are 287 probationers in the municipal court's program, he added.

Keller explained that the offices in the old building will be used for activities related to the driver retraining program, the program for alcoholics, the volunteer counselor training program, counseling and testing work with probationers and department administrative work.

Watt Given Water, Power Post

Washington (UPI) — James G. Watt, a former lobbyist for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, has been named deputy assistant interior secretary for water and power development, the Interior Department announced Tuesday.

Watt's name the headlines in February when Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, said he had been lobbying for the Chamber against Interior Department water pollution legislation. At that time, Watt was a $98-a-day consultant to Russell Train, undersecretary of the interior, under contract through March.

On Feb. 10, in response to a letter by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., Train said of Watt: "We have no intention of putting him in a policy-making position."

Two days later in Denver, Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel said Watt was a "competent fellow" and added that he considered policy-making positions to include only those of undersecretary, assistant secretary and bureau directors.

A department spokesman said Tuesday that he would not go beyond Hickel's statement. Neither Hickel nor Train were available for comment. Watt, 31, a Wheatland, Wyo., native and former legislative counsel to former Sen. Milward L. Simpson, R-Wyo., will receive $26,000 a year in his new position.

Postmasters President Hails Nixon Proposals

The fiery president of the National Association of Postmasters Tuesday told the Nebraska chapter meeting here that the Nixon administration will make changes in the Post Office Department and "if 50% of the programs discussed are carried out, the country will have better postal service."

According to Thomas P. Costin Jr., a Lynn, Mass., postmaster, reorganization of the Post Office has started at the Washington and regional levels.

However, Costin warned, more efficient service will not be produced unless the reorganization occurs at all levels throughout the Post Office Department

Impassioned Speech

Costin delivered his impassioned speech to some 200 Nebraska postmasters and others attending the opening session of the state chapter's four-day convention.

The national president blasted editorial writers who declared that the postmaster general's announcement about taking politics out of postmaster appointments would "provide more efficiency and better service."

It was postmasters who proposed three years ago changes in the postal system now being heralded as great improvements, Costin declared. If the Post Office Department had listened to the postmasters' recommendations then, $6 million would have been saved, he contended.

"If you want to know how to run a post office, talk to a postmaster," the speaker asserted.

Postmasters Ignored

The thing that is wrong with the postal service is that postmasters recommendations have been ignored, he emphasized.

Costin stressed that to do the job right, a postmaster has to be given training, money to run his office, a proper office and proper tools with which to work.

He questioned the demand that the post office be self-supporting when no one is asking for the same from other federal agencies.

Costin said that the postmasters association will be "unalterably opposed" to any reorganization that calls for closing down some offices. The postal department should be "adding offices and giving assurances that the offices now in operation will be kept."

Increases Urged

The speaker also called for comparable salary increases for postmasters in line with increases being considered in Congress for clerks and letter carriers.

He urged that ratios established three years ago that separate pay for employes and supervisors in the Post Office Department be maintained.

Costin said that postmasters should receive pay at a step higher than they are receiving now "because they are doing more than any other federal employe."

GI Bill Collegians Urged To Return Attendance Cards

The Veterans Administration has urged veterans and servicemen currently attending Nebraska colleges under the post-Korea GI Bill to complete and return VA certification of attendance cards as soon as possible.

Veterans and servicemen who do not return the card each enrollment period will receive no further GI Bill payments.

The VA also cautioned veterans holding VA home loans to obtain releases in writing if they intend to move to new locations. A new home loan may be obtained if the original one is paid off, but in any case the veteran is liable for his original loan until paid in full or released in writing by the VA.

3 Snow Removal Allocations OKd

Some $509,628 of the $1 million appropriation to help counties and cities with snow removal has been used up, Gov. Norbert Tiemann's office reported Tuesday.

The most recent allocations were $924 to Pierce County, $369 to Ponca and $539 to Wolbach.

100 Nebraskans Attend Meeting On Emergencies

Grand Island (AP) — More than 100 persons from throughout the state turned out here Tuesday for the Governor's Conference on Communication and Emergency Preparedness.

Principal speakers included Maj. Gen. Lyle Welch, Nebraska adjutant general and director of the State Civil Defense Agency, and Burl Johnson, assistant civil defense director.

Johnson said the aim of the conference was "to bring together state and local officials, governmental and non-governmental, who are in charge of emergency planning and to develop plans for providing information to the public during emergency periods by using public broadcast facilities, The Emergency Broadcast System, as well as newspapers."

The day-long conference included a series of worksrops and a tour of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. emergency corporate headquarters in Grand Island.
